A solemn, deliberate pelican has adopted for his special hunting ground, a section of Biscayne Bay including the shore front owned by this writer.

That pelican's easy life might make an overworked American wish he had been born a bird.

The pelican, wide and short, built like a tugboat, has a squat body covered with dull yellowish gray feathers, a long gray neck, pure white head, a powerful dark yellow beak about one foot long below which hangs the large pouch, convenient to hold surplus fish when more are caught than can be conveniently swallowed at the time.

You study true happiness and freedom, watching that bird. All Biscayne Bay, the sky above, the waters and fish beneath, belong to him. Occasionally he rises laboriously, with much disturbance of the water, and flaps slowly along near the surface, uttering a constant feeble "peep-peep," much too small for his size and his beak. Next he flops into the water, disappears, and comes up, almost invariably swallowing a fish. He "registers" no triumph or exultation.

Fish are there, and he was made to swallow them. He pauses, for a rapid assimilation. Back and forth, flopping and diving, devouring fish in numbers incredible, he sees them swimming below him in the shallow clear water, selects the right size and kind, disdaining the too small, ignoring the too big.

With sunset and twilight, your pelican, congratulating himself on a good day's work, rises slowly, much higher this time and flaps away out of sight, to the secret place where he sleeps. The rising sun finds him back on his happy hunting ground.

Never say that no other living creature lives, as happy, as free from care, worry or work.

There is another bird, another "biped" called the "practical politician" who leads as happy and carefree a life as that of any pelican. Taxpayers are his "fish," big cities with their business and industry are his Biscayne Bay.

Two happy birds with good appetites, pelican and politician. Why were they created?

You travel back into the night of time and superstition, reading of police raiding "the bolita racket" in Miami's Negro quarter. With that racket, a game of numbers, police say, a gang of white racketeers take twenty thousand dollars a week from Miami's colored population, keeping thousands poor. Such racketeering occurs everywhere. Racketeers divide generously with those that might interfere with them.

With bales of "bolita" and Cuban lottery tickets, police seized many "dream books" and, most interesting, quantities of "lucky incense."

Dream books tell the colored student what his dream means, and how to bet. "Lucky incense," its perfumed smoke curling upward, is supposed to inspire successful gambling. All that goes back far into the past and into the jungle.

Dreams impressed human beings before speech was perfected. Wise men tell you that man's first idea of immortality came from dreams of the early savage. He saw his dead father or brother alive, hunting. So, thought he, there must be life after death, and a place for the dead to hunt.

Police seek to discourage "bolita" because its victims contribute their government "relief money" to the gambling racket, and refuse to take regular jobs, although farmers need workers.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, buys a house in Miami, not because he has lost interest in California, or plans any transfer of moving picture business. He works in New York, wants his small children to spend the winter in a warm climate and Miami is nearer to New York than Hollywood. The house at 5369 Collins avenue, Miami Beach cost $150,000, a small investment for Mr. Schenck, now. He can remember when it would have been a big investment, when he and his brother Joseph had a small drug store across the Hudson river from Grant's Tomb in New York, and later, an amusement park.

In this country if you work, understand your business and take care of it, it will take care of you.

Do not give "living toys" to your children for Easter presents. Many parents and friends thoughtlessly give their children helpless living creatures, easily

Child Refugee Is Aided By Curley

CHARLES BURNETT JEROME HOBART GOVERNOR CURLEY

Governor Curley has just placed a five-dollar bill under the pillow of a sleeping flood refugee at the Elks Club, Holyoke, which was turned into relief headquarters for the city. Charles Burnett, exalted ruler, and Jerome Hobart, leading knight, both volunteer rescue workers, look on. Imagine the thrill of the youngster when he awakened to find that the Governor, himself, had been to see him and left a present.

WAR IN EUROPE NEAR, SAYS DUCE

ORDERS ITALY TO ABOLISH DEPUTIES

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press

Rome, March 23—Premier Mussolini, predicting the coming of a new war in Europe, abolished the Chamber of Deputies and all large private industries in Italy today.

For the Chamber of Deputies he substituted a Council of Guilds, known as the "Chamber of Fascists and Corporations."

Il Duce left only medium and small private industries intact and said of large private industries:

"We are going toward the period when these industries will have to labor exclusively, or almost so, for the armed forces of the nation."

In further explanation of his drastic move on industries, the Italian premier declared it was inconceivable that profits should be made from the manufacture of war materials.

Mussolini executed this broad stroke on the 17th anniversary of the founding of his Fascist party, after concluding conferences with government leaders of Austria and Hungary, and calling the grand

Attorney Is Reported Missing

Mystery surrounded the whereabouts today of John W. Connelly, prominent Boston lawyer.

New York police reported to Boston authorities that Connelly's baggage was aboard the Fall River Line steamship Priscilla when it arrived at New York Saturday morning, but that he was not aboard the vessel.

Police here immediately began a check-up on Connelly's actions and it was said that he might have left the ship before it sailed Friday night from Fall River and had missed the vessel.

The message from the New oYrk police said they found his belongings in a stateroom after the Priscilla docked, but could find no trace of Connelly.

Connelly lives at 349 Adams street, Dorchester, but no one answered the door bell or the telephone.

At his law office at 20 Pemberton square, no information would be given out, except to call a married daughter. The daughter also refused to comment.

The Fields Corner police station was notified by headquarters, and officers dispatched to the Adams street home. They found the house losked.

Connelly won prominence in legal circles here in many cases, one of the most spectacular of which was when he defended Herbert Gleason, who was electrocuted for the murder of James Monagle, Medford store owner.

WPA PLEDGES CASH FOR BRIDGES, ROADS

Washington, March 23 (INS)—Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, today assured Governor Curley of Massachusetts that WPA will do all work necessary to repair public property damaged by flood waters in that state, and work on private property "where health is endangered or where there is a hazard to life." Hopkins by telegram gave similar assurance to Governors Cross of Connecticut and Brann of Maine. Brann is scheduled to confer with Hopkins tomorrow.

It was announced by Governor Curley's office today he had been informed WPA funds could not be used for state highway and bridge reconstruction work of a permanent nature. He urged the legislative committees considering his $8,000,000 reconstruction program to use airplanes instead of autos in touring the flood area so that they could save time in making their report on his proposed program. The House had balked on the $8,000,000 appropriation.

Washington, March 23 (INS)—A bill which would grant the consent of Congress to the Public Works Department of Massachusetts to construct, maintain and operate free highway bridges to replace bridges destroyed by the flood was introduced in the Senate today by Senators Walsh and Coolidge, both of Massachusetts.

Flood-ravaged New England states, with 100,000 homeless, 250,000 jobless, damage estimated at $250,000,000 and dead and missing more than two-score, turned to war-time emergency relief measures today.

In Massachusetts, Flood Administrator Ralph W. Robart created a commission composed of mayors and chairmen of selectmen in affected cities and towns and deputized each local chief with the same drastic powers designated to himself by the governor.

Governors Bridges of New Hampshire, Brann of Maine and Cross of Connecticut appealed to Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins to take over the tremendous program of relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction.

Flood waters have definitely receded, but the Red Cross, National Guard and community relief agencies need more funds for vaccines, medical supplies, food and clothing. More than 75,000 refugees are being cared for by the Red Cross. Typhoid, pneumonia, influenza and scarlet fever threaten epidemics. Thousands are being inoculated.

Fair skies and receding rivers gave heart to New England today, embarked on the greatest relief and reconstruction program in its history, but so huge is the

ROOSEVELT APPEALS FOR MORE POWER

Winter Park, Fla., March 23 (INS)—Striking definitely at conflicting group interests, President Roosevelt today urged the people to become federal-minded insofar as government is concerned.

"First of all, your duty and mine is to the nation," the executive declared in a speech here, accepting a doctorate of literature from Rollins College.

Mr. Roosevelt expounded in five paragraphs a political philosophy upon which his campaign for re-election undoubtedly will be based. He made it quite clear that he was convinced "security and good" for the greatest number can best be achieved through national administration.

DEFENDS TAX BILL

One of the points he made was an obvious defense of the administration's new tax bill, designed to make up in levies on corporation surpluses the unanticipated drain on the federal treasury caused by the Supreme Court decision outlawing AAA processing taxes and congressional action in voting immediate payment of the World War bonus.

The President quoted two unnamed recent callers, one of whom disapproved the suggested new tax because "it would cost me many thousands of dollars," while the other said that although it also would cost him many thousands he considered it a fair tax, a tax equitable for the people of this country as a whole.

AWARDED DEGREE

The executive paused at this Florida college town while he received an honorary degree from the hands of hi old friend, President Hamilton Holt, and Mrs. Roosevelt received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan medallion for the attainment of the finer elements of character, sincerity helpfulness, purity of motive, exalted ideals of service and the steadfast pursuit of the noblest purposes of life.

Immediately following the Rollins exercises, the presidential special was scheduled to move south to Fort Lauderdale where the President will embark on a two week fishing cruise aboard the new White House yacht Potomac.

8 Die in Mexican Clash

Puebla, Mexico, March 23 (INS)—Eight persons were killed and 30 wounded when villagers from San Pedro Chapulco and Ajalpa in the State of Puebla clashed over divisions of lands.

JURORS PICKED TO TRY ROCHE

A jury was chosen in 15 minutes, today, for the trial of ex-Mayor James A. Roche of Everett, and two others, on conspiracy charges, in Superior Court at East Cambridge.

Roche is charged with conspiracy to steal property of the city of Everett and conspiracy to receive and aid in the concealment of stolen property.

George L. Woods, former Everett tax collector, is charged with the same offenses. Harold J. Gibson, formerly a clerk in the tax collector's office, is charged with larceny of $3500 in tax payments not turned over to the city treasury, and conspiracy to steal city property.

A large crowd of Everett residents filled the courtroom and there were some waiting outside to take empty seats at the first opportunity.

Roche exercised two of the four peremptory challenges allowed him, Woods and Gibson exercised three each, and the government exercised three. Mayor Edward W. Kenney of Woburn, is defending Roche. Judge Thomas H. Dowd is presiding.

Senate Again Bars Ship Canal Funds

Washington, March 23 (AP)—By one vote, the Senate refused today to reconsider its action of last Tuesday in rejecting the Fletcher proposal to provide $12,000,000 to continue work on the Florida ship canal.

It defeated, 36 to 35, a motion by Senator Truman (D.), Missouri, to provide another test on the army bill amendment of Senator Fletcher (D.), Florida, providing the fund.

BRUNO LAWYER SEEKS NEW 'JAFSIE' GRILL

Trenton, N. J., March 23 (INS)—C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, will confer with Attorney-General David T. Wilentz on the subject of testimony and statements made by Dr. John F. ("Jafsie") Condon, it was reported today in the attorney-general's office.

It was understood Fisher would demand an explanation of "discrepancies" in utterances by the Lindbergh ransom intermediary.

Meantime, Wilentz told reporters that while he would not comment on the possibility of another last-minute reprieve for Hauptmann, he would remain available to Governor Hoffman up until the moment of Hauptmann's execution, now scheduled for 8 p. m. March 31.

The governor has agreed not to reprieve Hauptmann again without Wilentz's approval.

A statement was issued from the attorney general's office today hinting that Condon is being "persecuted." The author of the statement asked to remain anonymous. The statement read:

"There is no reason for the

WAR-TIME LAWS INVOKED; TROOPS HALT HOMELESS

BAN LOOTING

Flood Administrator Robart, who has been clothed with the widest of powers by Governor Curley and his council, inaugurated his commission, with each member having command over public works officials, WPA workers, volunteer National Guard and U. S. Army engineers and centers of medical, food and water supplies.

Attempts at profiteering, essays at looting, may be punished by the most drastic penalties by each of the deputy administrators of the emergency chief.

"This situation is the same as during war," Administrator Robart declared. "No obstacle or delay for relief of the needy will be tolerated. Neither will anything or anybody hold up the re-establishment of communications to stricken areas."

Each mayor and each chairman of selectmen in the flood-ridden cities and towns was deputized by Robart to act in his district as Robart was acting for the state.

In the State House here today citizens far and wide, particularly in the non-affected areas, were called to a mass meeting for the purpose of swelling the funds to relieve the homeless, destitute and stricken refugees.

HOMELESS FEAR EPIDEMIC

The number in this state alone is estimated at more than 40,000. For the New England area, it is reckoned that there are no fewer than 100,000—possibly more.

Added to their misfortune is the menace of diseases that, once started, run to the epidemic stage. One case of typhoid may give birth to hundreds. One case of influenza may do the same. Scarlet fever spreads like a forest fire.

Most of the communities where these threats are rampant are communities that house huge hordes of refugees. Springfield in the Connecticut valley; Lawrence, Lowell and Haverhill, in the Merrimack, give gravest concern to Massachusetts authorities.

The homeless, anxious to get back to their flood-swept dwellings, were held back by National Guards and state police from reclaiming food stores and clothing supplies they need so desperately.

The need was so far surpassed by the danger of infection that there was no choice. Stores and restaurants were not permitted to reopen and vend their wares unless they bore cards in their windows testifying to inspection and approval by health authorities.

Apparently, unless there is a sudden shift in the weather, the threat of a new general flood is over, but in Maine bridges, railroads and property are far from past the worst.

Ten million tons of free ice crashed over the Gulf Island dam in the Androscoggin, giving Lewiston and Auburn new worries. The ice was crumbling under thawing temperatures, but the logs and debris in the river still pounded at both dams and bridges as the swollen torrent raced along.

MILLIONS PLEDGED N. E.

Governor Brann of Maine, like Governors Bridges of New Hampshire and Cross of Connecticut, placed the program of relief up to the Washington government.

Each hastened to place the problem in the hands of Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins, who had already promised to release millions of WPA money for reconstruction.

Governor Charles M. Smith of Vermont said that flood damage in his state was "nowhere near as bad as in 1927" and that he hoped the state would be able to handle its own relief and reconstruction.

Rhode Island, lightest sufferer of all New England states during the two weeks of disaster, felt that its burdens would have to be borne mostly by private concerns and individuals. There are virtually no emergency cases except those that can be cared for by local welfare officials.

Highway conditions have generally improved throughout New England, but authorities have issued a general plea that motorists, not forced to use the roads, stay off them.

Railroads have had and will continue to have emergency crews working day and night to re-establish connections to main points at least. Travel into Maine was possible today through the establishment of road detours and bus service over the gap between the Boston-Portland line of the Boston & Maine road.

New Haven Railroad officials reported they had started bus service for passengers between Hartford and Springfield. Freight service, however, remained at a standstill because of the Connecticut River flood, which inundated considerable trackage.

The Berkshire line was opened to freight service and it was expected that the lines between Providence and Worcester would resume operations during the day.

In general, industry, with 250,000 out of work because of damaged and flooded factories and mills, estimated that it might be at least another week before the normal employment conditions are restored.

MORE AID NEEDED

Some of the smaller plants where conditions were far from satisfactory before the disaster, may be forced to stay closed.

The Metropolitan Red Cross in Boston announced today that already $70,000 had been subscribed by volunteers in non-flood areas, but so huge is the need for thorough coverage of New England that there is urgent demand for far more than this sum.

State Commander John H. Walsh of the American Legion, Massachusetts department, sent out a general appeal to district commanders today to collect food and clothing for refugees, as well as to collect whatever donations are possible.

Money will be sent to Red Cross or other recognized agencies. Food and clothing will be sent to the National Guard armory at Natick for distribution to such points as Administrator Robart or Adjutant-General William I. Rose may designate.

For the first time in three days, automobile travel north by the Newburyport Turnpike was made possible today. A detour for northward traffic is through Salisbury. For southbound cars the chain bridge at Amesbury is open.

Governor Curley returned to his home shortly after 3 a. m. today after completing a survey of the Connecticut valley flood area. He asserted that reconstruction work must begin at once.

Delay, he declared, would be fatal insofar as speedy reclamation of the flood-torn valleys was concerned.

He plans an appeal today to Massachusetts Institute of Technology to throw its staff of engineers into the breach to help lay out an orderly plan of reconstruction.

As soon as the flood waters recede he hopes to have plans so complete that the work of restoration of communities can be started without an instant's delay.

After viewing the situation at Springfield and talking with city officials and refugees the governor declared that a force of 250,000 men would require eight months of work to repair the widespread damage.

WORK FOR THOUSANDS

He also indicated plans to provide work for thousands thrown out of employment by the crippling of industry by the flood in the vast relief and reconstruction projects.

Temporary bridges, he declared, must be thrown over the Connecticut river at strategic points in the valley without delay.

Building of new and permanent bridges will require many months, he pointed out and while these are in construction some means must be found for replacing structures washed away or irreparably damaged by the flood.

The governor also declared he would "go through with the construction of temporary bridges whether the Legislature liked it or not."

Leaving Springfield the governor drove as far as Northampton, halting at various flood wrecked cities and towns along the route.

At Northampton Mayor Charles L. Dunn accepted the post of food and fuel administrator during the flood emergency and immediately issued a warning against hoarding and profiteering.

Swift prosecution would follow any such activity, he said.

While no stores in the flooded area were allowed to open pending sanitary tests, the work of pumping cellars got under way.

Schools were open. Little tots were entertained and cared for by a group of 40 Smith College girls.

Dr. John J. Curran of the Board of Health said there was little need of anxiety regarding typhoid in Northampton.

STATE POLICE AID

State police stations are handling all requests from flood areas for WPA aid. Communities have been instructed to furnish lists of their requirements to troopers and these are being transmitted by teletype to Acting State WPA Administrator Paul Edwards.

Governor Curley declared Massachusetts was confronted with the greatest emergency in its history.

He declared 60 per cent of the roads and highways of the State were damaged or destroyed and that 80 per cent of the Commonwealth's bridges were wrecked.

Boston & Maine railroad crews have been working more than 24 hours steadily to restore through train service to the north of Boston, disrupted by the washout of the bridge east of Newburyport.

Trains from Boston to Portland, however, are still stopping at Newburyport. From Portland to Boston the end of the line south is at Portsmouth, N. H. Busses are bridging the gap.

5000 LOWELL REFUGEES

The Merrimack valley was still inundated in many key sectors despite the fact that the river waters have dropped far below the peak flood level.

It was in this area that the specter of disease stalked most dangerously.

Hundreds of cultures taken at Lowell indicated presence of typhoid and fear of a widespread epidemic was voiced by health officers.

More than 3000 persons are refugees from flood waters in that city. Strict orders have been issued prohibiting any persons from entering the flood area until fumigation and cleaning work has been completed.

Inoculation of all flood refugees has been ordered and all who have had any contact with the river have been advised to submit to the same treatment.

Every house in the flooded district is to be examined by health officials and fumigated before occupants are allowed to return.

Officials estimated weeks would be required before this work was completed and declared that at least 100 houses would have to be demolished as uninhabitable.

BLOW TO INDUSTRY

Industry also suffered appalling blows in Lowell.

A crew of 3500 was busy yesterday clearing away muck and slime deposited by the flood waters as the river receded from the inundated areas.

The body of Bertrand G. Grant, 40, who was drowned Friday when a rescue boat capsized, was found by workers yesterday.

Two additional companies of National Guardsmen also arrived in the city to reinforce the bands on duty patrolling the flood area.

In Lawrence at least 3000 National Guardsmen were expected to be on duty today to supervise the work of housing and feeding refugees.

CLOSE ANDOVER SCHOOLS

City officials declared the city was not under martial law as previously reported but that the guard was on hand in a co-operative and supervisory capacity, ready to take charge if the emergency warranted.

Inoculations of residents of Andover and North Andover were made compulsory by order of the board of health to protect against an outbreak of a typhoid epidemic.

Schools have also been ordered closed for the week in the city.

Ten of the city's 24 school buildings are now in use for flood activities. Six are being used for housing refugees; three more for quartering National Guardsmen and the other as a temporary hospital.

The Masonic Temple has been made the post of command for flood supervision of all the Essex and Middlesex county area by the National Guard.

Failure of the water supply also loomed as department officials stated that there was sufficient on hand at present to last two more days.

Residents of the city have been requested to conserve as much as possible. In spite of the warning, more than a million and one-half gallons above the normal was used in the city yesterday.

Officials expressed the opinion that water was being "hoarded," householders drawing it and storing it in all types of receptacles because of fear of a shortage.

Practically every mill in the city will be closed for at least 10 days. Only one large mill, the Arlington, was unaffected by the flood.

Workers there are contributing $1 each from their pay to aid textile workers thrown out of employment by flooding of other mills.

Survey started in the flooded sections yesterday revealed that many homes are badly undermined and unfit for occupation.

Indescribable filth and debris litter the muck and slime filling streets and houses from which the water has receded.

STREETS UNDERMINED

Water has also undermined streets and torn away pavements in many of the thoroughfares. Extensive damage has been caused to pavement in Salem, Hampshire, Valley and Oxford streets, officials said.

Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn, visited the striken city yesterday. After conferring with Mayor Walter Griffin he stated that government aid was being sought for Lawrence.

$2,000,000 HAVERHILL LOSS

Haverhill, excited for the past three days by the torrential flood waters, awoke today to the realization that it faced a long and tedious task in restoring streets, bridges, buildings and homes.

No estimate of the damage has been attempted as yet although officials in rapid calculations assert the loss will reach $2,000,000.

Every building on the southerly side of Merrimack street has been ordered vacated.

As waters receded from the flooded sections it was discovered that most of the street and basement floors had buckled and would have to be rebuilt.

It was in this area that the heaviest damage was caused, the heart of the city's retail trading district.

Electric light, gas and telephone service were still disrupted.

Railroad traffic on the Boston & Maine line was practically resumed but it will be some time before normal service is in force.

Groveland bridge remains closed and will not open for many days, according to report. It was also said early today that the Bradford approach of the lower Haverhill bridge had been undermined and was buckling.

Lowell Combats Disease Threat With Inoculations

DR. JOHN CASSIDY NURSE MARTHA REED

Dr. John Cassidy of Lowell inoculates flood victims against the ravages of disease. The nurse is Martha Reed. Lowell was hit hard by the flood. Thousands are still homeless in the city. Every precaution was taken against an epidemic.

Cleanup On

Albany, N. Y., March 23—The hum of human activity accompanied today the silent retreat of flood waters that spread last week over wide areas in upstate New York, taking two lives and causing damage estimated at $5,000,000.

Reconstruction forces toiled to restore normal conditions in many communities.

New Menace

Chicago, March 23—Fields of ice swept down the Mississippi today while overburdened tributaries of the river forced two dozen Minnesota families from their homes and surged over thousands of acres.

Forecasts of rain and snow in the Mississippi Valley added a menacing note.

Packing Clothes for Flood Victims

MRS. EUGENE M. McSWEENEY MRS. CHARLES McSTRAVICK

With the flood-stricken areas of New England in dire need of clothing for the hundreds of homeless, Mrs. Eugene M. McSweeney, wife of the Police Commissioner, personally supervised the packing of boxes of clothes at Boston police headquarters. She is shown here with Mrs. Charles McStravick, who also aided in the work.

Women Sort Flood Relief Clothing

Mrs. Eugene M. McSweeney, wife of the police commissioner, and eight other women were working at Boston police headquarters today, sorting clothing donated by officers, their families and citizens, for flood refugees.

Commissioner McSweeney reported that results of his apepal for cast-off clothing were excellent. One truckload of clothing was sent to West Springfield.

Mrs. McSweeney and her coworkers are members of the Boston Police Post, 251, Legion Auxiliary. More members of the auxiliary were working at the post's headquarters, 1049 Columbus avenue, where collections of clothing are being received.

Similar work is being performed by firemen under Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin.

N. E. RAIL, BUS, TRAIN TRAVEL RETURNING TO NORMAL

Improved conditions in rail, bus, airplane, telephone and telegraph service were in effect today from Boston into flooded New England.

Although national auto clubs and State public works department continued their warning for motorists to keep off the road except on emergency trips, highways leading into flooded regions were beginning to open up.

Gasoline was being sold in New Hampshire and Connecticut only to vehicles on emergency trips.

Bus service from Boston was vastly improved. Buses were leaving on regularly-scheduled trips for Manchester through Lawrence, Salem, N. H., and Derry, N. H. The trip from Boston to Bangor was in operation, making stops at Portland, Brunswick, Bath, Rockland, Rockport and Belfast.

Starting today, the Boston to Buffalo bus service made stops at Springfield, Pittsfield and Albany.

The shore line to New York has not been affected by the flood and was being used for all New York trips. This route leading to New Haven and New London is also recommended for all pleasure vehicles headed for New York City.

The bus service to Montreal was resumed on regular schedule today. This line runs through Lawrence, Salem, N. H., Derry, N. H., Manchester and Burlington, Vt.

From East Boston airport, planes were being sent out on schedule to Rentschler Field, Hartford, into Maine, New Hampshire and up to Burlington, Vt.

The National Airways was running their planes to Portland, Augusta, Waterville, and Bangor on schedule. This office also reported extra trips will be in effect if necessary.

American Airlines has opened its service from Boston to Albany, and was sponsoring chartered service into Springfield, landing at the Springfield Municipal airport.

Air service to Lowell, Lawrence, Nashua, Westfield, Turners Falls and Greenfield was being run on chartered service. The Lowell airport was reported in good condition.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company reported today that only two towns can't be reached from Boston—Upton and Andover, Me.

In many areas service is limited by complete washout of subscriber's phones. All business districts, however, in each of the main cities affected by the flood can now be reached by toll service.

Nine thousand subscribers' phones were reported out in Springfield. Of the 1034 toll lines from Boston to all points in New England, only 28 were reported in trouble. Of the 10,000 toll lines in all parts of New England, 388 lines were reported out of order.

Telephone company officials were optimistic over the way repairs are being made and offices restored. Attention is being paid now, they declared, to the restoration of subscribers' lines now that the damage has stopped.

The helpless creatures are roughly treated, mutilated, fortunate if they happen to be promptly killed by children that know no better.

At Easter the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals receives innumerable calls to care for broken legs, ribs, injured heads and bodies of chickens and other small animals. Such gifts, breeding cruelty, have a bad influence on children, should be forbidden by law and by the common sense of parents.

This is printed at the request of Adaline Stephens Martin.

Someone says "be careful how you stroke a pet cat, near gasoline. Stroking pet cats develops electric sparks that may set fire to the gasoline." Does Dr. Ditmars of the big zoo in New York know anything about that? Is there enough real fire, in the spark from a cat's back, to be dangerous?

The learned Ditmars says it is not true that the viper serpent, which bears its young alive, opens its mouth and swallows them temporarily, for their protection, in the time of danger. Dozens of reputable readers write to say they have seen the thing happen.

Has any reader seen a cat's spark set fire to gasoline?

2 GIRLS, 3 BOYS HURT IN CRASH

Salem, March 23—Three youths and two girls were seriously injured today in a head-on collision between a truck and an automobile at "Dead Man's Curve" in Loring avenue.

The injured, taken to Salem Hospital:

Francis T. The truck was driven by Robert Peterson, 21, East Fifth street, South Boston. Finnegan and O'Connell were riding with him.

AAA 'WINDFALL TAX' FAVORED

Washington, March 23 (AP)—A House ways and means sub-committee agreed today to recommend to the full committee a high "windfall" tax to recapture perhaps $100,000,000 of refunded or unpaid AAA processing levies.

"It is safe to say we are going to recommend the windfall tax," Chairman Samuel B. Hill (D-Wash) told reporters.

He added that the sub-committee was working on a report now and expects to complete it Thursday or Friday, to allow the full committee to start open hearings next Monday on the President's $792,000,000 tax program, in which the "windfall" tax is recommended.

No decision was reached as to the rate for the windfall levy, Hill said, but sub-committeemen have been talking of 90 per cent, with a yield of around $100,000,000.

U. S. Lifts $10 Fine On Boat Owners

A $10 fine originally planned for owners of motoboats if they filed their registration after April 1, was abandoned by custom officials today.

Custom officials said it would be impossible to reregister 14,231 boats in two months. The task usually takes five months.

Officials said the Department of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection Bureau in Washington notified the local office February 1 to complete the re-registration before April 1, fixing in $10 penalty.

About 8650 application cards have been mailed to boat owners. Officials announced 1200 new registration numbers have been awarded.

Announcement was made by officials that old numbers may be used until new ones are awarded and that new numbers are not required until boats are put in water.

DIONNE Begs Edward DECIDE

WANTS FIVE BABIES BACK

London, March 23 (INS) — King Edward, no matter what departures from precedent he may make in other matters, probably will follow the footsteps of his father and decline to intervene in the case of five of the British Empire's best known subjects — the Dionne quintuplets.

This was the general opinion today following the publication of New York dispatches saying Oliva Dionne, father of the little girls, had written direct to King Edward to cancel the Ontario government's guardianship.

As action would mean interference with a Dominion Legislature, the King is expected to leave the matter entirely up to the Canadian government.

It was possible the case might get to England for a decision, however, in the event Dionne took it to the courts. If this happened, it might eventually reach the Privy Council.

Want Children "All to Ourselves"

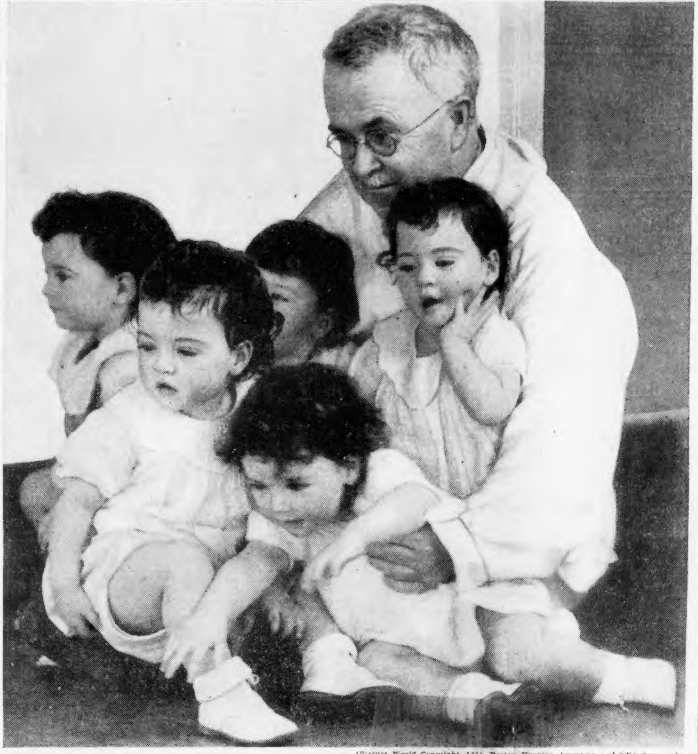
New York, March 23—Heartbroken Elzire Dionne, sight-seeing amid the gayness of Manhattan with the man for whom she bore the quintuplets, has taken her troubles to King Edward VIII.

Oliva Dionne, father of the five babies who have become the darlings of the civilized world, revealed that the pleadings of his wife had prompted him to write to King Edward VIII "to see if we could have all our children to ourselves."

With the quintuplets wards of the Crown, their welfare looked after by a board of guardians, the parents complain they see but little of them. They feel that their family has been divided.



Most popular feller in the Dionne nursery, it would seem, is Dr. Allan Dafoe. It's getting to be quite a task now to hold all five of the famous youngsters in his arms, but with a little stretching he managed to make the span. In the usual order, from left to right, the lovely little ladies are Marie, Annette, Yvonne, Emilie and Cecile.

St. John River Flood Crisis Ends

St. John, N. B., March 23 (INS)—The St. John River flood crisis had passed today. So far as could be determined all residents of the low-lying sections overrun by the river were saved and there was no loss of life. Property damage and livestock losses were very heavy, however. Ice jams, north of here, broke today, clearing most of the river which meanwhile had begun to recede slowly.

Boy Loses Pin, Now Wants to Play

What difference does it make to four-year-old William McCarthy of 54 Main street, Charlestown, whether it was a needle or a pin he swallowed?

All young Billy was interested in today was leaving his bed in City Hospital and resuming play—preferably at home.

All this fuss—and keeping him in bed!

The boy was hurried to the hospital last week after he was believed to have swallowed the needle. Yesterday, however, the object was recovered without an operation and was found to be a common pin.

See a Pin and Pick It Up? Not Again!

A lot of persons may still follow the old adage that picking up a pin brings good luck, but 4-year-old William McCarthy of 54 Main street, Charlestown, is through with pins for good. He's recovering at City Hospital today from the effects of swallowing a pin.

COUNSEL CLASH IN BANK QUIZ

Hearings on the $3,500,000 suit brought by four subsidiaries against the Receiver of the closed Federal National Bank by the State Bank Commissioner are expected to end in United States district court tomorrow.

At today's hearing, presided over by Arthur Black, sitting as master, opposing counsel clashed over admissibility of questions put to Ralph E. Wedgeworth of Davenport street, Milton, formerly discount clerk at the Federal National, relative to loans of $50,000 made to Daniel C. Mulloney and $50,000 to Charles A. McCarron December 26, 1929, by the Brockton Trust Company.

John C. Coughlin, of counsel for the Receiver of the Federal National, showed Wedgeworth a number of letters dealing with loans, and Neil Cronin, of counsel for the state bank commissioner, contended the conversation leading up to the sending of the letters by Wedgeworth to the subsidiary banks should be given.

Wedgeworth testified he knew nothing of receiving any instructions about the loans.

32 IN BET RAID FOUND GUILTY

Thirty-two men, arrested in a raid on a horse-race betting establishment on Blue Hill avenue, Mattapan, Saturday afternoon, were found guilty today in Dorchester District Court and will appear tomorrow for final disposition of their cases.

Twenty-eight were found guilty of being present and four of registering bets. Nobody was charged with running the place.

Capt. Thomas Connolly, who staged the raid on orders from Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney and without notifying Capt. William Lewis of the Mattapan division, told the court that the place was "the worst kind of a nuisance."

"This place," he said, "was patronized by men who could not afford it, including some who are on welfare.

"When we entered the establishment, we found men gathered in a large room playing blackjack between races. In a small adjoining room there were two windows where they could register their bets."

Liner Queen Mary Will Sail Clyde

Clydebank, Scotland, March 23 (INS)—Plans were completed today for the giant new British liner Queen Mary, scheduled to sail for New York on her maiden voyage from Southampton May 27, to make her first and last journey down the Clyde river.

Tomorrow the 1004-foot ocean colossus will begin a tortuous 20-mile journey down river to the Firth of Clyde and deep water, preparatory to sailing for Southampton Wednesday.

Three Girls Deny Sounding Alarms

Tired of running around Dorchester in the vicinity of Ronan park in response to false fire alarms, officers in a cruising car became detectives and trapped three suspects. They were three girls who denied sounding the alarms, but said they knew a fourth girl who did.

The three were turned over to their parents after a stern warning.

Fisch 'Hot Money' Clue Is Traced in Havana

Havana, March 23 (INS)—Lieutenant Robert W. Hicks, investigator for Governor Hoffman of New Jersey, arrived today to look into the alleged "Fisch letter" reported sent here before the arrest of Bruno Richard Hauptmann in 1934.

Claims have been made that Isidore Fisch, deceased furried and former business associate of Hauptmann, wrote inquiring into the possibility of disposing of "hot" money in Cuba. The letter was dated months before Hauptmann's arrest and long before Fisch's name was mentioned in the case.

Hauptman insisted at his trial that Fisch gave him the $14,800 Lindbergh ransom bills found in his home.

$43.30 Boston Tax FEARED

HUGE BUDGET SLASH URGED

Unless Boston cuts costs, or resorts again to huge borrowings, the city faces a "suicidal tax rate" of $43.30 for 1936.

That was the warning today by the Municipal Research Bureau in proposing a program to rehabilitate Boston's finances.

The report, filed simultaneously with the Legislature, Mayor Mansfield, the city council, the school committee and Suffolk County officials, suggests 19 points of economy and reform declared to be necessary.

"If the tax rate is to remain at $37," the report states, "the city must borrow or retrench to the extent of about $10,000,000. The research bureau outlines a plan to retrench by $5,000,000 this year and to eliminate the remaining $5,000,000 during the next two years. Thus the city would be placed on a pay-as-you-go policy."

The school budget should be reduced to $16,000,000, the report declares, or about $1,000,000 below last year's expenditures.

The city maintenance budget should be $2,800,000 below that for last year; welfare loans should be reduced; all the city' financial agencies should be unified in a single agency; a no-hiring policy should be established; the compulsory retirement age should be lowered.

Also, there should be cooperative purchasing by city officials; city departments should be consolidated for economy; the county budget should be reduced, and new metropolitan and rapid transit projects should be rejected.

Brockton Holds 3 On Liquor Charges

Brockton, March 23—Three men were arraigned in District Court here today on liquor charges, marking the first such appearance of anyone since repeal.

Michael Sussinski, 46, pleaded not guilty to charges of keeping and exposing liquor for sale; allowing alcohol to be adulterated, and being concerned in a lottery. He was said to operate a club in Ward street.

Fred E. Clairmond and Walter V. Zurosky, said to be owners of a North Montello street establishment, entered not guilty pleas to charges of selling liquor to minor persons. All three were held in bail for hearing March 28.

VERA STRETZ

The arduous task of picking a jury for the murder trial of Miss Vera Stretz, 31-year-old blonde, was resumed today. The self-composed defendant is charged with slaying Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, her former employer.

Walker Changes Mind, Adopts Child

Chicago, March 23 (INS)—Former Mayor James J. Walker of New York today signed a formal adoption decree to become the legal father of a five-weeks-old baby girl.

The dapper "Jimmy" and his beautiful wife, the former Betty Compton, decided after all to become the parents of the infant. The famous couple appeared unexpectedly today before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and voiced their desire to adopt the infant now at the Cradle in Evanston.

The decree, however, is not returnable until Saturday. At that time, the Walkers will appear to formally claim the baby and make plans for removing it from the Cradle.

Soon after it became known, a week ago, that the couple had selected a baby at the orphanage, the Walkers announced in the East that they probably would drop the adoption because of publicity.

STRETZ Case Loses JUROR

NO. 3 EXCUSED, MOTHER DIES

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, March 23 — Juror No. 3 was excused today at the trial of blonde Vera Stretz, 31-year-old New York University graduate, who shot and killed her lover, Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, in his apartment [illegible] last November 12.

The juror, William A. French, Jr., a radio engineer, was released because of the death of his mother.

Selection of the jury was resumed. The excusing of French by Judge Cornelius R. Collins left only three jurors in the jury box.

Vera, pale, but serene-faced, [illegible] into court wearing a bright blue hat, gray tailored suit and black topcoat. As she seated herself at defense table she removed her topcoat, sat back and quietly listened to the attorneys question the talesmen.

Admit Crime

Miss Stretz pressed a black-gloved hand to her forehead as her lawyer, Samuel Leibowitz, said to one prospective juror:

"Of course, you know, there is no question but that this defendant did the shooting."

Again, as on Friday, Leibowitz asked talesmen if they had read the teachings of Nietzsche, the German philosopher. Why he was asking this he did not disclose, but it has been intimated he will seek to show that Dr. Gebhardt dominated Miss Stretz and fed her exotic philosophy.

The prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney Miles O'Brien, told talesmen he wasn't going to ask them whether or not they had read philosophic dissertations

"All I want to know is, will you use the yardstick of common sense when the time comes for you to consider the evidence?" said O'Brien.

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT'S TALK AT ROLLINS EXERCISES

Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., March 23 (AP)—The text of the address delivered today by President Roosevelt in accepting an hononary degree from Rollins College follows:

President Holt, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am honored in becoming an alumnus of Rollins College, not alone because of my deep interest i the work that is being carried on here, but also because of the long-time personal friendship between your president and myself.

It is because of the varied culture, the tireless industry and the indenendent thinking of Doctor Holt that his old friends were not at all surprised when he substituted new ideas in education for old practices.

These changes fearlessly inaugurated at Rollins are bearing fruit. They are being watched by educators and laymen. The fact that in some respects they break rway from some of the old academic moorings should not startle us. In education, as in politics and economics and social relationships, we hold fast to the old ideals a d all we change is our method of approach to the attainment of the ideals. Stagnation follows standing still. Continued growth is the only evidence of life.

Progress Opposed

Let growth and progress invariably and inevitably are opposed bitterly, falsely and blindly opposed. In a remarkable film on the life of Louis Pasteur, which I saw the other night, the great English chemist, Lister, said to Pasteur when the latter was being denounced as a charlatan and an imposter by leading doctors of the French Academy of Medicine, "My dear Pasteur, every great benefit to the human race in every field of its activity has been bitterly fought in every stage leading up to its final acceptance."

What has taken place at Rollins illustrates what I speak of as new approaches to old problems. If you abolish lectures and recitations and substitute the conference plan of study, you do not abandon the old ideals of culture. An amazing increase in the very number of things which an educated man must know today calls not only for more facts but calls also for what might be called a third dimension in education—the tying together of all the subjects and all the facts into the relationship of their whole with modern life.

One Great Problem

Just as you and, indeed, the faculty and the students in any college reach conclusions individually and collectively, so do the masses of our people individually and collectively approach governmental problems. All of us are greatly influenced by group association. The family group is the oldest, the smallest, and yet through all change and all time the most important. Yet there are groups with some of which almost all have some form of association—the church, the social circle, the lodge, the labor organization, the political party, the neighboring farmers. Business and commerce are almost wholly made up of groups.

The fact of this group existence and resulting group thinking brings forward one of the great probems of orderly government functioning.

It is the problem of government to harmonize the interests of these groups, which are often divergent and opposing, in order to guarantee security and good for as many of their individual members as may be possible. The science of politics, indeed, may properly be said to be in large part the science of the adjustment of conflicting group interests.

In the community, local government must adjust small groups for community good. In states, larger groups must be coordinated for the greater good of all the people within the state. In the federal government, the problem is to adjust still greater groups in the interest of the largest group of all—125 million people, in whom reposes the sovereignity of the United States of America. But it is well to remember that the individual citizen contributes most greatly to the good of this largest group only when he or she thinks in terms of the largest group. Only in this way can democracy and a republican form of government permanently succeed.

Not long ago, two nationally-known men visited me, one in the morning, the other in the afternoon. I asked the opinion of each of them in regard to a suggested new tax to replace a former tax which had been declared unconstitutional. My friend of the morning replied:

"I could not approve of that kind of tax—it would cost me many thousands of dollars."

My friend of the afternoon said:

"Such a tax would, it is true, cost me many thousands of dollars, but I am inclined to think that it is a fair tax, a tax equitable for the people of this country as a whole and, therefore, I would favor it."

Understanding

The development of national understanding as opposed to purely individual or local group domination is growing by leaps and bounds throughout our nation. It is the logical development of broader and better education and it is the logical development of the extension of what I sometimes call the policy of the good neighbor. The good neighbor is not just the man who lives next door to you. The objective includes the relationship of your family to his; it extends to all the people who live in the same block; it spreads to all the people who live in the same city, the same county and the same state; and most important of all for the future of our nation, it must and shall extend to all your neighbors, to your fellow citizens in all the states and in all the regions which make up the nation.

First of all your duty and mine is to the nation. If we perform that duty well—you and I—the policy of the good neighbor will in the long run assert itself so strongly, so victoriously, that it will spread to other peoples and nations throughout the world. The ideal is there—developed to a greater or less extent among the masses of the people in every nation. We of the western hemisphere are working together to prove the practical value of this great ideal of peace and justice among men and among nations.

Directly at the Freedom of the Press

From the Binghamton, N. Y., Press

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST has filed in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia a petition which seeks to restrain the Western Union Company from delivering a copy of a specific telegram to the Senate lobby committee in which Mr. Hearst directed an editor to prepare a series of editorials presumably about the activities of one or another phase of the New Deal or possibly about the Black committee itself. In his petition Mr. Hearst contends, and properly, that Congress is without authority under the Constitution to interfere with, restrain or restrict the business of the press.

Not only does Congress lack authority for such restraint, restriction and interference, the freedom of the press is specifically guaranteed in the Constitution.

Not long ago the United States Supreme Court settled quite definitely the blackjack Louisiana tax legislation aimed at newspapers. Now it doesn't make very much difference as to what form the blackjacking takes. A taxation sandbag is no worse than an espionage sandbag.

THINGS have come to something of a pass in this country if and when the publisher of a newspaper is unable to send a presumably private telegraphic order to an editor concerning policy to be followed without having that business become a matter of government scrutiny.

The principle involved here is a basic one. The committee's action approaches too closely an attempt to regulate the press to permit of its being ignored by press or public either. Unless, as was pointed out in these columns on the Louisiana tax case, long before the Supreme Court handed down its decision, the press is free to serve the public and to inform it concerning matters of government, its functions are sadly diminished.

Always since the beginning of newsprint the tendency of government has been to attempt, directly or indirectly, to influence and color newspapers for political advantage. That is the situation in Europe today. Wherever it obtains other abuses follow in its wake. Freedom becomes a questionable matter. Intolerance, repression and suppression follow toe on heel in the wake of interference with the proper dissemination of public information.

Mussolini Predicts War In Europe; Defies League

"PREPARES FOR WAR"

Il Duce discarded the Chamber of Deputies in favor of a council of guilds, and eliminated Italy's large private industries in a move to increase the nation's economic self-sufficiency, he declared, in preparation for a possible European war.

"When and how war will come one does not know," he told the national council of the 22 guilds of the corporative state, "but the wheel of fate turns fast."

The National Council of Guilds, which replaced the Chamber of Deputies, is composed of 22 productive, credit, transport, agricultural and professional corporations, or category guilds.

Mussolini aroused tremendous enthusiasm among the nation's leaders in industry and labor by declaring differences in rank among the various producing workers must be lessened.

He asserted the large industries, particularly those working for the defense of the nation, would be formed into organizations called "Key Industries."

These, he said, "will be run directly or indirectly by the government. Some will have mixed organization."

"These industries, owing to their characters, volume and importance for war, leave the field of private economy and enter into fields of State economy," Il Duce proclaimed.

Mussolini drew more cheers when he declared that with this reform the Fascist party reached fulfillment of its purposes.

Standing beneath the huge flags of the Italian provinces, under the shadow of a great statue of his ancient ideal, Julius Caesar, in Caesar Hall, on Capitoline Hill, Il Duce declared sanctions "will remain a mark of infamy in the history of Europe, just as furnishing material and moral aid to Ethiopia will remain as a page of dishonor."

He said Italy now had enough iron for either peace or war needs.

Italy's economic plan, he asserted, is "dominated by the one premise of the inescapability of the fact that the nation will be called to the task of war."

"This dramatic eventuality must guide all our actions," he proclaimed. "In the present historical period, the fact of war, together with the doctrine of Fascism, are the determining elements in the position of the state with regard to the economy of the nation.

"The siege (of sanctions), now in its fifth month, will never bend Italy. Only opaque ignorance could have brought a thought otherwise."

He declared "political autonomy can no more be achieved without equivalent economic autonomy."

He warned his hearers that Italy would not return to the status it held last November 17—the day before sanctions were imposed.

Il Duce concluded his speech by declaring:

"The indomitable will of generations is now coming up to capacity for the highest sacrifice, namely, that of blood, which, it has been demonstrated three times in this first period of the century, are sufficient elements to raise our faith and to open the gates for our future."

Mrs. Roosevelt In Twin Honor

Winter Park, Fla., March 23 (AP)—Anna Eleanor Roosevelt today received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan award from Rollins College here "because when you became the First Lady of the Land you became also the first woman citizen of America."

President Hamilton Holt of Rollins College presented the medallion to Mrs. Roosevelt at exercises at which he conferred an honorary degree of doctor of literature on her husband. It was believed to be the first time both husband and wife have been honored at the same time by an American college.

President Holt's words of presentation were:

"Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, this medallion is given to you not only because of your high leadership in the civic and social life of every community in which you have served, nor because of the impress of your zestful and very human personality upon the American people, far reaching and praiseworthy as that has been.

"It is rather given because you have ever made your home the radiating center of youth, laughter, good breeding and affection, and yet at the same time have steadfastly followed the self same path of public service as wife of the President of the Republic that you did before you shared with your husband the highest office in the gift of the American people.

LANDON SWEEP IN OKLAHOMA SHOWS TREND

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

Washington, March 23—Nothing more exactly illustrates the extent to which Governor Landon of Kansas is being looked to today for leadership by the plain people of his region of the country than the overwhelming endorsement that has just been given to him by the Republican VOTERS of Oklahoma, who ELECTED a delegation INSTRUCTED for Landon.

In that mid-continent state the Kansas governor has a following which has grown naturally out of certain circumstances, personal, historical and geographical.

What has happened in other states has now been repeated with marked and significant emphasis in Oklahoma, where the people themselves have turned to Governor Landon for leadership in the approaching contest for and against the New Deal, and the major and minor local leaders, with political sagacity, have sensed the desires of the people, and have fallen into line behind them, and not in front of them.

Oklahoma Republicans began their movement for the nomination of Governor Landon for the Presidency months ago. They ENDORSED him in their LOCAL meetings of a non-political character.

The Oklahoma press was quick to see the trend of sentiment toward him, and lastly the leaders obeyed the popular expression of state-wide opinion.

SPONTANEOUS MOVEMENT

Those who know something of the history of Kansas, and the career of Governor Landon, realize far better than do political students of the country that this Oklahoma movement for Landon has been one of the most spontaneous of the many spontaneous movements in his behalf.

What the political leaders, particularly in the East, have overlooked is the fact that to a great extent the people of Oklahoma regard Governor Landon as one of themselves.

The three important factors involved are easily understood.

Governor Landon spent much of his youth in Oklahoma, in laced boots and flannel shirt, when he had only recently come out of college, and was gaining his early business experience in the Oklahoma oils fields, not long since [illegible]ed, and which were attracting [illegible] adventurous spirit of the [illegible] of the land in the days of [illegible] forty-niners. Governor Landon for years has been intimately [illegible]n to thousand of Oklaho[illegible]

[illegible] the early days of Oklahoma [illegible] young men of the state were [illegible] to the State University of Kansas to complete their education [illegible] and many of the prominent men [illegible] affairs in the state today were [illegible]lassmates of Governor Lando[illegible] at that university.

KANSA[illegible] ORIGIN

Ano[illegible]r thing commonly overlooked by political students is the extent to which Oklahoma, originally an Indian country, was populated by settlers from Kansas.

This movement, first into the old Indian territory, and later, in the early nineties into that part of Northern Kansas west of the old Osage reservation, was one of the great migrations of the West. Northern Oklahoma today is filled with men and women who trace their origin back to Kansas. Naturally they feel a genuine state pride in the Kansas governor.

It was only natural that after Landon's second election as governor in 1934 they should have looked to him for presidential leadership.

Here are certain powerful conditions upon which is based the strong probability that, if nominated for President, Governor Landon could take the Democratic state of Oklahoma from the Democratic column, and make it, as it was some years ago, a Republican state.

It is extremely doubtful if any other Republican now being discussed for the presidential nomination, could surely win the electoral vote of Oklahoma.

"DEALERS" SUPPORT GORE

So strong has the probability become that recently it is said the Democratic high command in Washington has thrown its support to Senator Gore in his campaign for reelection to the Senate, notwithstanding his hostility to the New Deal.

There is a three-cornered contest under way in Oklahoma, Governor Marland, and Representative Josh Lee being also in the race for the Republican nomination for the Senate seat now held by Gore.

On the theory that because of his hostility to the New Deal Gore would be the strongest candidate, the Democrats are now said to be anxious to bring about his renomination. This is due wholly to the threat which Landon offers to Democratic control in Oklahoma, where the Literary Digest poll showed the state almost exactly evenly divided.

The nomination of Landon would almost certainly give the Republican ticket the electoral vote of Oklahoma.

IN WASHINGTON

Seizure of Telegrams May Be Campaign Issue

By ARTHUR KROCK

(Reprinted from the New York Times of March 6)

Washington, March 5—It is not yet clear whether the Republicans in the coming campaign will attempt to make major capital of the vindictive spirit the administration has often shown toward its critics and of the frequent charges that Federal functions have been used for reprisal. But, as the current stir over the wholesale seizure of personal papers by the Black committee illustrates, there is an important and pertinent argument to be made.

Congressional committees bent on inquiry have generally revealed total disregard of rules of evidence and rights of privacy. The powers of Congress in these matters are so broad, and contempt of its branches so alarming to citizens, that much injustice and perhaps illegality have been accepted by objects of the inquiries. Probably other committees in the past have attempted to use the powers of subpoena to the extent Senator Black and his associates now seek to use it. But it would seem that they have now exceeded constitutional authority. The fourth amendment provides that—

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

The question whether a seizure or search is "unreasonable" is a judicial, not a legislative one, but the court must look into all the attendant circumstances. This was held in two cases by the Supreme Court.

In Federal Trade Commission vs. the American Tobacco Company (264 U. S., 298) it was, however, decided that a fishing expedition in private papers on the possibility they might show evidence of a crime is contrary to the first principles of justice and defiant of the fourth amendment.

Under this ruling there would seem to be ample basis for the Supreme Court now to hold that the Black committee cannot read the entire private correspondence of persons and corporations selected by them on the possibility that not a crime but lobbying activities within the law will be revealed for political effect.

GOOD TASTE A FACTOR

Justice Adkins of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia has issued an order restraining the Western Union from supplying to the Black committee all telegrams sent or received in a specified period by the law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw of Chicago. Adjudication of this case may and should result in a specific ruling which will in the future serve as a check on the snooping of congressional bodies more interested in getting political ammunition against the enemies of the party in power than in contributing to the orderly consideration of legislation.

This ruling would be a protection against the vengeful politicians and the peeping toms of public life, of whom both major parties have an ample supply. It is hardly a comfort to a citizen whose private papers have been greedily perused by members of Congress to be told that they won't be published if they do not seem to bear on the inquiry then under way.

But good taste, a sense of fair play and the character of an administration which represents the congressional majority will continue to measure the degree of preservation of the rights of citizens which even the constitution and the courts cannot fully protect.

If the members of congressional investigating committees are bounders, their bad taste will hurdle the wall of the fourth amendment. If an administration is willing to use the income tax bureau, the secret service and the legal departments of the government to try to prove its preconception that all critics are selfish men or rascals, a good deal of this bureaucratic tyranny will proceed with impunity.

It will proceed with impunity, that is, unless conscienceless persecution is proved, or unless circumstantial evidence is strong enough to convince the electorate that the practice really exists. If the Black committee is checked in its effort to acquaint itself with whole files of correspondence on the suspicion that lobbying activities may be revealed, the Republicans will have something for their platform and their campaign.

"DEATH SENTENCE" CLAUSE

It is a fact that while many of Mr. Black's colleagues in private conversation have expressed distaste for his methods, there is no public record of disapproval by the President.

The Black committee's side of the controversy is that, unless it has access to all communications, it cannot tell which will bear on its inquiry. To issue a series of specific subpoenas, it contends, would remove revelation from the period in which it would be useful. It can, and does, point to its discovery of the public utility law telegrams as having contributed effectively to the defeat of the opponents of the "death sentence" clause in that act.

The committee's legislative authority is as broad as words can make it, and hitherto the courts have been chary in limiting the latitude of congressional committees. Perhaps the courts have conceived an unhappy situation in which a committee would proceed despite a court restriction, and thus give a witness his choice of being in contempt of one authority or the other. But if the courts are ever going to set a limit, the time would seem to be now.

BLACK'S FRIEND IS NAMED WIRE RAID COUNSEL

Washington, March 23 (US)—The Black Senate lobby committee has selected special counsel to defend its wholesale raid on private telegrams, it was made known today, although the House and President Roosevelt have yet to act on its requested appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose.

Crampton Harris of Birmingham, Ala., former law partner of Senator Black (D) of Alabama, the committee chairman, is the man chosen.

In the injunction suit brought by William Randolph Hearst, Harris will represent the five senatorial investigators who ordered the foray into files of the telegraph companies for private messages.

The publisher's action to halt seizure of telegrams and force return of those already taken must be replied to in District of Columbia Supreme Court by Thursday.

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association, representing 80 per cent of the country's press, has rallied behind the Hearst suit.

Although resentment at the Black committee's tactics has been outspoken, the likelihood is that no obstacle will be placed in the path of Harris' extra compensation. The newspaper publishers are anxious for a quick determination of the issue and plan to carry the fight to the Supreme Court, if necessary.

Robert E. Smith, representative of an investors' organization sponsored largely by railroads and public utilities on the Pacific Coast has been directed to appear before the lobby committee tomorrow for further testimony.

The committee brought out that Smith shared a house here last summer with six representatives while the utility "death sentence" bill was under consideration. Some House members have shown resentment at this phase of the testimony, declaring it was an effort to "smear" them.

Smith's telegrams have been seized by "dragnet" subpoenas, as have the private messages of a thousand or more firms, individuals and organizations.

REHABILITATION ARMY SWINGS INTO ACTION

Copyright, 1136, by the Associated Press

With the flood crest of the Ohio roaring down toward its confluence with the Mississippi, sweep destruction and destitution along with it, the nation went to work today on one of the most gigantic rehabilitation tasks in its history.

In the eastern states, a panorama of death and desolation after a week of havoc, rivers were receding rapidly.

TOLL NOW 172

The death list was revised downward in a re-check in Pennsyvania and stood at 172.

By states, the deaths were:

Pennsylvania, 112; West Virginia, 18; Ohio, 4; Maryland, 4; New York, 2; Massachusetts, 10; Connecticut, 3; Vermont, 5; New Hampshire, 1; Maine, 5; Virginia, 4; Georgia, 2, and North Carolina, 2.

Estimates placed property damage at $500,000,000. More than 425,000 persons were homeless.

Almost as many, including thousands of CCC and WPA workers, were engaged in rebuilding and repairing.

LITTLE INSURANCE

A check-up with insurance companies showed virtually none of the Hartford area was covered by flood insurance. This was true for much of the flood-swept East.

The crest of the Ohio surged around Portsmouth and for more than a hundred miles downstream dozens of towns and villages were inundated. Hundreds of persons in Cincinnati, 110 miles downstream, were deserting their homes.

For the direct relief and emergency reconstruction needs, seven of the devastated states were making appeals for funds approximating $60,000,000, mainly from the federal government, but some from states, municipalities and public relief agencies.

Already the federal Government has allocated $43,000,000 to the WPA relief and emergency reconstruction needs.

On the basis of unofficial reports, the nation quickly was going "over the top" in raising the minimum of $3,000,000 asked by the American Red Cross for reelief work.

Pennsylvania officials said that amount had been raised in this one state alone.

CAUTION TAKEN

Over the area of devastation, caution was taken to prevent further deaths. Officials warned against a too-hurried return to flood-weakened and damaged buildings.

In New York State, a thousand highway department workers were rushed to the task of repairing wrecked and damaged roads between the state's principal upstate cities. Over the state, 10,000 WPA workers joined a hand in the rehabilitating task.

In Pennsylvania, the danger from food and water shortages was over. Evidencing the widespread need for contributions, the Red Cross said it was caring for 110,000 persons in Pittsburgh and its neighboring suburbs alone.

Baer's Ex-Fiancee Under Knife

New York, March 23 (AP)—Mary Kirk Brown Seymour, pretty Park avenuite and one-time fiancee of Max Baer, was scheduled to undergo a major operation at the hands of Dr. Miguel Elias in Wickersham Hospital today. She entered the hospital last Monday.

The society beauty was married to William Seymour, New York and California jeweler, in Miami on February 6, after a two-day courtship. It was her third marriage.

Flood Waters Halt Church Services

FATHER KELLY

When overflowing waters of the Connecticut flooded St. Anthony's Church in Hartford, Father Kelly was forced to tell his parishioners that services could not be held. He is shown here pointing out flood damage to a few of his congregation. Damage, however, did not prevent many a heartfelt prayer being offered for those stricken by the roaring waters.

Maine Floods Subside; Brann Asks U. S. Aid

Portland, Me., March 23—With rivers definitely subsiding after concentrating their final fury on Biddeford and Saco, fear of additional widespread flood damage abated throughout the state today.

As the waters receded leaving thousands homeless and destitute, Governor Louis H. Brann was in Washington seeking financial aid for his stricken territories. The damage is conservatively estimated at $25,000,000.

Peak of the Maine flood was reached yesterday when the Saco river struck with redoubled fury, ripped out six bridges, weakened another connecting Route 1 with most of Maine, flooded power plants and office buildings and inundated nearly 200 houses in Saco and Biddeford.

Flood refugees are being quartered in legion headquarters at Old Orchard Beach, Saco and Biddeford. Others were taken into private homes removed from danger of the floods.

In less than 12 hours the flood swept through or over most of the houses on the river bank. It impaired all telephone communication and electric power.

All first aid work was in charge of the American Red Cross. In Saco and Biddeford the Salvation Army handled feeding arrangements for the 1000 homeless.

Schools were ordered closed indefinitely as were the theaters. Gas and electric power will be furnished only to hospitals and other emergency operatives.

The long traffic bridge forming an artery to Maine was closed despite opposition of Mayor Frederick H. Mitchell of Biddeford, who spent yesterday afternoon arguing with members of the city council who believe the span unsafe for traffic.

In Brunswick, where many highways were washed out, reconstruction of roads has begun. Telephone service is still seriously impaired and the policy of handling only emergency calls will be continued.

In Auburn martial law was ordered when fears were expressed that abandoned homes might fall prey to looters.

2-YEAR NEEDLE PACT SIGNED

Peace, long delayed, settled today on the Boston garment industry when all but a few dress manufacturers signed a two-year contract with thedress workers' union.

The groups represented at the conference at the State House were the Massachusetts Dress Manufacturers' Association, the joint board of the Cloak, Skirt and Dress Manufaacturers' Unions and the State Board of Conciliation and Adbitration.

The agreement pegged the minimum wage at the NRA limit, dealt with working conditions and hours and granted recognition to the workers' union, the principal demand of the strikers.

¼ Especially important was the resumption of cordial relations between the silk dress makers and their workers, a group representing the most bitter opposing factions during the strike.

Philip Kramer, Massachusetts head of the workers' union, congratulated the state board for its peacemaking efforts, and his sentiment was echoed by the manufacturers.

G-Man Killer Waits 'Hobby Hangman'

Indianapolis, March 23 (AP)—Between midnight and dawn tomorrow George W. Barrett, 55, Kentucky feudist, will be hanged in the Marion county jail yard here for the murder August 16 of Nelson B. Klein, a Department of Justice agent.

Phil Hanna, Epworth, Ill., stock breeder, who assists at hangings as a hobby, without pay, will be in charge of the execution.

Milk Normal

Boston's milk supply was back at normal today with train service resumed to milkshed areas as far away as 300 miles.

Dealers were credited with amazing resourcefulness in meeting the situation by Dr. Frank E. Mott, chief milk inspector for the city.

Commander Walsh urged post commanders to send checks to Treasurer Charles J. McCarthy, at the State House offices, and asked further that benefit performances of all kinds be held to raise additional funds.

War time nurses and physicians were asked to hold themselves in readiness for action in case of an outbreak of disease in the stricken areas.

On Saturday, a meeting of the State Department executive committee will be held at Springfield, when plans to aid stricken posts in the flood districts will be discussed.

Money contributions to relief agencies have already been made to many communities in the Merrimack valley, Connecticut valley and Blackstone valley districts, Commander Walsh said.

Amoskeag Bond Purchaser Balks

When the bondholders' agreement of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company was presented to Judge George C. Sweeney in Federal court today endorsing reorganization, Charles M. Green of Cherry street, Lynn, objected.

Green told the court that as a holder of a $2000 bond, he now concluded it was unfair and wished to withdraw previous endorsement.

The court took the matter under advisement along with the plan of reorganization presented two weeks ago.

Speed Phone Repairs

Only four New England towns are without telephone service today as a result of the flood. Toll service is still suffering and between 600 and 700 circuits are not working, company officials said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

2 GIFTS SWELL AMERICAN'S RELIEF FUND

Generous contributions to the Boston Evening American by two prominent Bostonians today swelled the amount previously received by the Boston Sunday Advertiser in the fund being collected by these two newspapers to aid the Red Cross flood relief activities.

Realizing the urgent need of immediate relief and heeding suggestions from hundreds of readers, the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser yesterday launched their co-operative fund which is meeting with wide response.

Donated today were $250 from Samuel Gaines and $100 more from Patrick A. Coleman.

In addition the total is expected to be swelled considerably by the sum collected by girls at the Cocoanut Grove, Mayfair, Cascades and Brown Derby night clubs.

The girls circulated among patrons at the clubs collecting freewill donations in locked boxes.

OPEN BOXES TODAY

The boxes are to be opened today under the direction of Ben Ginsburg, Mayfair head, who has already contributed $250 himself, and Joe Rubin.

The total is to be turned over to the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser fund committee at once.

Anyone may contribute to the fund. All donations are being received by the Flood Relief Editor, 5 Winthrop square, and are being turned over at once to the American Red Cross.

It is the duty of every person to aid as much as possible those thousands of flood sufferers whose needs are IMMEDIATE.

Red Cross Asks Funds For Immediate Relief

Funds for immediate relief to flood sufferers rather than supplies is the crying need of the Red Cross in its drive to aid the homeless according to word received today from the national headquarters of the organization.

Receding flood waters in New England reveal conditions much worse than had been previously estimated.

Aid must be rendered to flood victims for an indefinite period while the work of reconstruction gets under way.

Contributors in Boston may send or make their donations to the American Red Cross, 347 Commonwealth avenue.

$1500—National Shawmut Bank.

$1000—J. Malcolm Forbes, Mrs. William [illegible]es.

Flood as Alibi O.K.'d by Judge

Judicial notice of the flood was taken in Middlesex Superior Court today when Judge Thomas H. Dowd granted a delay to Lester A. Hill, who was to have made restitution of $873.40.

Hill had been given probation on a charge of larceny when he said he would return the amount to Sadie Weisberg of Dracut.

Today he asked for four more days, saying the money was on its way, but had been held up by flood.

The flood came into another case when Mayor Edward W. Kenny of Woburn, who was to have acted as counsel, asked for a continuance so he could attend Governor Curley's conference of mayors at 1 o'clock today.

The judge said he could not hold up the trial, but would protect Mayor Kenny's interests.

HAGOOD'S POST GIVEN PARKER

Washington, March 23 (INS)—The War Department today announced officially that another high-ranking Army officer would fill the post of commander of the Eighth Corps Area, from which Major General Johnson Hagood was recently removed for criticizing administration spending policies.

The department announced that Major General Frank Parker, commander of the First Division at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., had been assigned to command of the Third Army at San Antonio, Tex. This assignment, the War Department announcement said, also includes command of the Eighth Corps Area.

The War Department's action in assigning Parker to Hagood's post came at the very time that the latter was conferring with President Roosevelt aboard the presidential train on his removal.

Washington, March 23 (INS)—Battered by a severe storm and in a sinking condition, the schooner yacht Kaydet, which sailed from Washington a week ago Saturday bound for Panama, was abandoned today 500 miles off Charleston, S. C., and ten persons aboard were taken off by the steamer Rosario.

Aboard were Captain Homer B. Millard, head of the Millard Preparatory School for West Point; Mrs. Millard, Francis Wright, a naval academy graduate who acted as navigator, and seven students of the school who are to enter West Point.

U. S. WILL SPEND 500 MILLION TO CURB FLOODS

(Copyright 1936 by Universal Service)

Washington, March 23 (US)—Spurred by the toll of death and destruction caused by floods in 14 eastern states, leaders in Congress today discussed plans to earmark a large portion of the proposed $1,500,000,000 relief fund for flood prevention projects.

At least a half billion dollars, it was learned, will be asked for flood control.

Written into President Roosevelt's relief request for the coming fiscal year will be specific mandates from Congress for the construction of levees and dams and the establishment of huge flood control basins.

A House appropriations sub-committee already is at work drafting the President's recommendations into a bill to be brought to the floor next week.

FLOOD FUND TO WIN

Insertion of a provision to use millions of dollars for flood control projects is expected to break the back of opposition to the measure.

Administration advisors agree that allocation of funds for flood control work instead of "boondoggling" would ease much of the criticism levelled at relief expenditures.

President Roosevelt has allocated the Works Progress Administration an additional 25 million dollars for eastern flood relief. Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, immediately pressed into service 250,000 WPA workers who will be sent into the flood stricken areas in ten states.

Meanwhile contributions to the three million dollar emergency flood relief fund asked for the Red Cross by President Roosevelt were pouring in to every local chapter. Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Red Cross national chairman, announced that a total of $639,216 had been received with only a small percentage of the 3700 chapters having reported.

SOLELY FOR RELIEF

These funds, however, are for purely relief purposes and do not contemplate eradication of conditions which in the future will, unless corrected, again result in death, destruction and pestilence by floods.

The program for flood prevention includes planting of trees and grass in river areas to allow absorption of moisture and to prevent soil erosion.

With the Civilian Conservation Corps already established, the President has an army of trained men prepared to battle against the further ravages of unruly waters. The CCC, under the plan now under consideration, would aid in the tree-planting program.

Flood control dams, such as those constructed or proposed on the upper branches of the Mississippi, are included in the program.

Congressional support of the new program was assured with the argument expenditures for the construction of dams, dykes, diversion banks and reforestation will be substantially for labor and not for costly materials.

Man Held as Fake Relief Fund Agent

Malcolm S. Colgate, 39, of Boston street, Somerville, will appear in Somerville court today on charges of larceny.

BRIDGE WRECKED! ENDS PASSAGE BETWEEN TWIN CITIES!

LAST HOPE SHATTERED! All means of passing between the twin cities of Biddeford and Saco, Maine, were shattered when this foot bridge gave way to the roaring waters of Saco river. It was known as the Lower York Hill bridge.

A BATTLE OF A BRIDGE—Those who saw this bridge at Windsor Locks, Conn., "weave" in the powerful flood waters of the Connecticut were sure it could not survive. However, holding back much debris, the bridge was still standing today as water receded. It was feared, though, that bridge might have to be destroyed because of terrific flood strain.

DOUBLE TROUBLE MEETS A DWELLING!—Uprooted by flood waters, this home is now floating downstream on torturous path of destruction. The house first struck a telephone pole. The pole crashed into the wires. If these wires are broken, all means for Hudson's connection with the outside world will be lost.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE—BUT NOT THIS KIND!—Drinking water was scarce in most flood sections of New England today as flood victims were warned of diseases resulting from polluted water. Here we see flood-stricken residents of Brunswick, Me., receiving their water supply from a fuel truck, sent from a nearby city. Children were sent with every conceivable kitchen utensil to fetch the precious water.

WATER GOES ROUND THE ROUNDHOUSE—This photograph, made of the roundhouse of the Springfield Railroad and industrial center at Agawam, was made from a Hearst Newspapers plane. No engines could move in or out of the roundhouse. Agawam was hard hit by flood waters of the Connecticut river.

Smart Set Enjoys Dance After Skating Carnival Thrills

By BETTY ALDEN

THE GRACEFUL GLIDES and waltzes performed on the ice at the skating carnival evidently put ideas into the heads of many of the audience for, after the affair was over, a large group of young people got together and went over to the Towne Club to try a few dance steps themselves . . .

POLLY COTTER

Among the first we saw were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Steele, who were married in January, out dancing again in one of the favorite haunts of their courting days . . . The bride, formerly Jane Butler Smith, wore a pretty dinner dress of gold metal cloth with long sleeves and high boat neck . . .

Matching their wits at a cosy table for two were Louise Ranney, one of this year's peppiest debs, and Gordon McKissock, tall and very blonde brother of Barbara McKissock . . . The latter is one of those ex-debs who has made good in the business world . . . modeling is Barbara's forte and she must be considered a very lovely one or she wouldn't have such consistent good luck in parading before discriminating New Yorkers in Fifth avenue's smartest shops . . .

To get back to the Towne Club's Saturday night dancers, we also met Polly Cotter accompanied by Bob Beattie, and Ruth Williams who was joyfully celebrating her spring vacation from Vassar . . . Ruth was with Dick Sprague . . .

Others in the very congenial crowd were Mr. and Mrs. Louis McClennan, Dorothy Preston, Jean Fuller with her fiance, Ben Prouty, Arthur Willis, Priscilla Phelan with Charles Vallendar, and Duncan Brown, Jr., with his favorite dancing partner . . .

The consensus of opinion awarded Blanche O'Riordan the distinction of having the most individual outfit of the evening . . . Her long royal blue gown, fitted where it should be and flaring very extravagantly in other places to give it a flowing appearance, was topped by a floor length cape of ruby velvet . . . She had a large gardenia at the neckline of her gown and one tiny one pinned on her silver kid purse . . .

Just a few others we glimpsed through the smoky haze were Frannie Cove, Barbara Lane, Ted Skinner, John Hodges, Jr., Ferdinand Stent, and Dick Wakeman.

Livingston-Lee Wedding Ceremony

THE CUSTOMARY SUNDAY AFTERNOON sleepiness of the quiet little center of South Natick, was disturbed yesterday afternoon by the echoing of deep, rich chimes in the steeple of the white Colonial Church, and the arrival at the church of all the wedding guests of Isabella Hunnewell Lee and David Livingston . . .

The ceremony was performed at 3:30 by the Rev. Grant Noble of New Haven, Ct., Episcopal chaplain of Yale University . . . The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lee of Wellesley, was given in marriage by her father . . . and in keeping with the simplicity of the wedding the church was tastefully decorated with tall cedars and flowering forsythia . . .

The bride wore a simply fashioned gown of satin, the color of calla lilies, with a long train falling from her short jacket and a tulle veil to match the dress . . . She carried a bouquet of white roses . . . Her two sisters, Miss Lucy Lee and Miss Pauline Lee, a debutante of this season, were the only attendants and were gowned in aquamarine satin with matching toques and carried clusters of bright yellow forsythia . . .

Mr. Livingston had his brother, Donald Livingston of New Rochelle, N. Y., as best man and the Messrs. Sydney M. Williams, Jr., of Wellesley, Winthrop H. Lee of Concord, F. Sargent Cheever of Marlborough street, Austen B. MacGregor, John R. Henry and Elihu S. Howland, all of Yale University, as ushers . . .

Reception at Wellesley Home

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the wedding the guests drove to Wellesley to extend their best wishes to the bridal couple at a small reception at the Lees' home on Grove street . . . Mrs. Lee assisted in receiving the guests, wearing a springlike gown of navy blue with a flowered silk top and navy blue accessories . . . Following their honeymoon the newlyweds will be at home in New Haven Ct., until Mr. Livingston completes his course at the Yale Law School . . .

The bride is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gould Shaw, (Isabella Pratt Hunnewell) and the late Mr. John C. Lee of Wellesley was her paternal grandfather . . . She attended Bennington College after making her debut at a house dance in September, 1931 . . .

Mr. Livingston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Livingston of Honolulu, and he received his A. B. degree from Yale last June . . .

Among the guests at the wedding were the bride's maternal uncles, the Messrs. Hollis Hunnewell Shaw, Theodore Lyman Shaw, and Arthur Hunnewell Shaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Parish, Jr., (Joan Brush) who gave a buffet supper party on the eve of the wedding to entertain the bride and groom and a group of their intimate friends . . .

Boston society will be very well represented at the annual Aiken horse show, one of the outstanding events of the near future at that fashionable winter resort . . . Mrs. James Simpson, Jr., the former Ella de T. Snelling, daughter of Mrs. Rodman P. Snelling of Commonwealth avenue, has already reserved parking space near the scene of the most exciting events, and Mrs. Augustus Goodwin, who will attend the show with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Woods of Hamilton, will present a cup in one of the hunting classes . . .

At present Mr. and Mrs. Sargent Collier are sojourning at Aiken and last week were guests of honor at a luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. W. Russell Grace . . .

Books on Parade

By MILES ALDEN

A novel of more than passing appeal of the strange fate which lay behind two young Parisian children and a light romance by the popular Ruby M. Ayres are today's offerings.

THE HOUSE IN PARIS—Elizabeth Bowen—Alfred A. Knopf.

The author has been hailed by some critics as approaching Katherine Mansfield and Virginia Woolf.

Although it does not seem that Miss Bowen has quite yet achieved these rarified heights, certainly there is subtle charm to this novel which raises it far above the ordinary.

The opening of the story deals with the meeting of two young children in a Paris "pension" and their conversation which carries with it the atmosphere of tragic mystery.

The greater part of the novel is given over to a "flash-back" telling the love story of the boy's parents, and how it affected the lives of four persons.

The ending again concerns itself with the present and its strange premonition of the future.

• • •

AFTERGLOW—Ruby M. Ayres—Doubleday, Doran.

The Ruby M. Ayres fans, and they seem to be legion, will not be disappointed in her latest pen romance, "Afterglow."

It has all the ingredients which go to make up a successful Ruby M. Ayres novel. A beautiful heroine, buffeted by life's cruel circumstances, the strong, unrelenting hero, and love. Love that begins with hate.

For the lovely and spoiled Pam, (our heroine) at first hates Richard Ward. The change of heart is drawn with all the skill and color that characterizes the author's work and occupies the major portion of the book.

Two other romances besides Pam's add interest to the tale. There are the ever-quarreling but loving Paleys, Mona and Jack.

The story opens with our heroine stranded without money or relatives. A whim of fate and our beautiful Cinderella is landed in the home of Dr. Ward.

Then romance begins and it doesn't end until the last page when she is safely landed in the arms of her hero.

Joins Future Brides

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hood Bonnelli of Commonwealth avenue and Squirrel Island, Me., announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Darling Bonnelli, to Houston Street Phelps of Boston, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Phelps of Holyoke.

Miss Bonnelli was graduated from the Lee school with the class of 1927 and made her debut at the Ritz-Carleton Hotel in New York city, the following season. She is a great-granddaughter of Andre Bonnelli of the Italian nobility and a direct descendant of Baron Von Itendahl, the Countess de Mouline and Sir Timothy Darling.

Mr. Phelps is a graduate of Cornell College, class of 1926, and of the Harvard School of Business Administration. He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Army and Navy Club of Boston and the Cornell Club.

Miss Bonnelli is a sister of Edward Hood Bonnelli, Jr., whose marriage to Miss Alice Mason Trowbridge of Englewood, N. J., took place last fall.

Alumnae in Easter Events

Notre Dame, Emmanuel Active

LET'S RIP OFF a few calendar leaves and find out what the Easter tide holds in store. At least that's what the alumnae of Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame and Emmanuel College did at their meetings yesterday afternoon.

At Emmanuel Alumnae meeting, Mary Sheehan, president of the alumnae, directed the day's activities. She wore a smart frock of vari-colored print and Mary Tribble secretary of the group, read reports of the recent theater party at the Shubert.

A series of interesting monologues by Anastasia Kirby of Belmont, was the highlight of the meeting. Anastasia chose an ankle-length frock of royal blue with revers and buttons of silver for her dramatic debut.

Whether to have a spring lecture or sponsor Ballet Russe was the question of the day. Eleanor Stankard of Belmont, chairmans the spring event. To yesterday's meeting she wore a Chesterfield coat of blue plaid, her matching derby trimmed with confetti-dotted veiling. In her party were Emily Collin, in black velvet costume suit edged with Persian lamb . . . Loretta Daley smartly ensembled in brown wool and Margaret Sullivan who wore a rough straw sailor with ocelot swagger.

Indulging in a tete-a-tete were Mrs. James Greeley of Gloucester, in navy sheer, Mary Feeny of Medford, her beige coat collared in kolinsky, Martha Donerty, who wore black accessories with her grey caracul coat and Betty McCarthy, whose bright green suit had revers of gray kidskin.

Other alumnae attending the affair were Catherine Grant, in brown cheviot ensemble, Madelein O'Brien in a dress of soft rose crepe and Dorothy Denning smart in a black kidskin coat trimmed with silver fox.

From the class of '35 came Eleanor Sullivan, her gray wool costume very effective with her blonde hair, Dorothy Hoar, whose green suit had a tiny collar of mink, and Grace Maloney in print with a small pill-box of black velour.

Flower Show Open Despite Flood

The annual Spring Flower Show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society opens this afternoon at four o'clock in Mechanics Building and continues daily for a week from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Few who view the magnificent show which is even finer than any in the past, will realize the work done to bring plants and flowers from all parts of the country through flood areas.

Yesterday 4000 flowering tulip plants arrived from Dublin, N. H., estate of Mrs. F. F. Brewster of New York. Every difficulty through the flooded district was overcome by the men bringing through the flowers, even to building a temporary bridge and carrying the plants by hand across swollen rivers.

Later in the day a truck from Keene fought to bring the Ellery exhibit through.

Before it arrived an emergency call from the Red Cross headquarters at Keene, N. H., brought a message from Stewart Emerson, national re-employment director, now in charge of conditions there, asking the driver to bring back a load of needed supplies.

West opened the King of spades, dummy winning with the Ace. Seeing two losing spades and a possible losing trump, declarer gave the matter no further thought and immediately took the trump finesse. He had a rude awakening when, in addition to losing the King of trumps and two spade tricks, he also had to lose a trump trick to East.

Of course declarer did not play the hand well. He should have seen that he could afford to lose one trump trick but not two. Four trumps to the King at his left would make it impossible for him to make the hand. Four trumps to the King at his right could occasion him no concern. There was only one possible holding (the actual one) which would cause routine play to be a losing procedure. But insurance could be taken out against such distribution by means of a simple safety play.

His first play should have been the Ace of trumps. If both hands followed and the King did not drop, the next lead should be from the dummy to avoid the loss of two trump tricks in the event that East held four to the King. Actually, however, West's King would have dropped under the Ace and declarer would have lost only one trump trick.

Shirtmaker Version

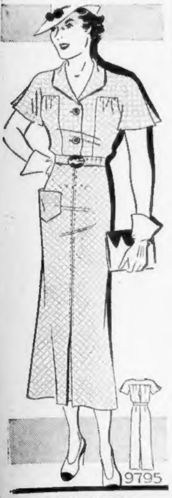
MARIAN MARTIN

How's your Budget today? Feel it can stand a new frock? And why not, with cotton so gloriously smart and inexpensive!

Then choose the shirtmaker, for it's right for wear all through the Spring, and perfect for those week-end or vacation jaunts you'll be taking this Summer.

Checked seersucker, knockabout cotton plaids, shirting or tie silks will "do you proud," and make it one of the most serviceable frocks in your wardrobe.

Pleats give nice rhythm when you walk, and slashed, saddle-shoulder sleeves a world of freedom. And you've no idea how easily it can be made! Complete diagrammed Marian Martin sew chart included.



PATTERN 9795

Pattern 9795 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 yards 36 inch fabric.

Opera-Night Glamour Decreed by Fashion Congress

CHIFFON that floats like something in a dream . . . and gauze-fine black lace, with a dramatic splash of brilliant blue cire satin . . . chiffon for daughter, lace for mother . . . that, declared the Fashion Congress, will take care of the glamour question for gala spring and summer nights, which start off this week with the opera.

Left, Miss Betsy Byron models a chiffon gown in a living spring green that makes you think of an undine. For while it floats, it has a liquid, trailing quality that makes you lithe-limbed as a water sprite in her element. To become practical about it, no doubt the credit for the effect goes to the stitch-released shirring, so very Parisian, which bands the neckline, slopes down the back, and edges the hem. With it is a matching lastex velveteen evening jacket, short and very full. A step above is Miss Frederica Sargent in flower-splashed chiffon, blue and poppy and yellow, with dark blue velvet straps doing a maypole dance at the shoulders of the camisole bodice. Her short red lastex and velveteen jacket is done in a puffy jacquard pattern.

Ingenious ROULETTE Wheel COMPACT

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU no longer need to go to Monte Carlo or other gaming resorts to pick a "lucky number."

A roulette wheel that actually goes spinning at the touch of the finger is the latest beauty offering for spring. How?

It's in the form of a novelty vanity for loose powder and is just the thing for the cocktail bar costume. The roulette wheel is on top—numbered in sections of black, green and gold.

The whole affair is so tiny that it can be tucked inconspicuously away in your purse. It holds a generous supply of face powder and has a good sized mirror to boot.

This roulette compact is sold for amusement only, of course, and it isn't at all necessary that the game should be played with money. You will find great enjoyment with the use of any type of counter.

Complete directions on how to use the roulette—not the compact, of course—come with it. It's a faithful replica of the famous wheel at Monte Carlo and is about the most ingenious affair imaginable. While remarkably inexpensive, it has that luxurious, high-priced look that ordinarily is found only in five dollar compacts.

We are willing to "bank" everything on the fact that women who favor loose-powder vanities, will stock up on these compacts—not only for themselves but for Easter and wedding gifts. They are sold exclusively in a downtown Boston store.

If you would like the name of these compacts, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cakes With a New Taste Thrill

Chocolate Recipes That Will Delight the Family

FROM MARTHA LEE'S MONDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WAAB.

CHOCOLATE cake, by popular acclaim, is the one made and enjoyed most frequently in American homes. And so it may seem amiss to ask if you know what kind of chocolate cake you like.

Chocolate cakes do vary as you know from different recipes you have tried and the many cakes you have tasted.

But now chocolate cakes have been classed into four basic recipes by the Home Economics department of the new all-vegetable shortening.

These findings after years of experimentation have been published in their new cook book which you may have for the asking. And you may choose a rich, fudge-y, fine-grained cake using four squares of chocolate, or the traditional mahogany-colored devil's food calling for three squares of chocolate.

For an all-round favorite, there's a chocolate cake with two squares of chocolate. And a new taste thrill in a delicate milk-chocolate cake using one square of chocolate and evaporated milk for this characteristic flavor.

Chocolate cakes as you and your family desire them. The milk chocolate cake aroused so much interest in our cooking school that we print that first.

MILK CHOCOLATE CAKE

½ cup shortening.
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
1 square chocolate, melted
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup evaporated milk

Combine shortening, salt, and vanilla. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add melted chocolate and blend well. Sift flour and baking powder together three times. Add small amounts of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Pour batter into two square eight-inch layer pans, well greased. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Spread Creole Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake.

CREOLE FROSTING

1 tablespoon shortening
1 tablespoon butter
1 square chocolate
4 tablespoons hot coffee beverage
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon salt

Melt shortening, butter and chocolate over hot water. Pour hot coffee over sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla and salt. Add chocolate mixture and beat smooth and thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 8-inch layers. To insure smoothness, stir until sugar is completely dissolved after adding hot coffee.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

½ cup shortening
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon soda
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
2 squares chocolate, melted
1¾ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk

Combine shortening, salt, vanilla and soda. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add melted chocolate and blend well. Sift flour and baking powder together three times. Add small amounts of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Pour batter into two 8-inch layer pans, well greased. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Spread Butterscotch Icing between layers and on top and sides of cake. Or ice with Boiled Frosting.

BUTTERSCOTCH ICING

1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed.
2 tablespoons butter.
⅓ cup milk.
1 tablespoon light corn sirup.
⅓ cup shortening.
¼ teaspoon salt.
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar.
3 tablespoons hot milk.

Combine brown sugar, butter, ⅓ cup milk and corn sirup in a saucepan and cook until a small amount forms a hard ball in cold water (250 deg. F.). Stir constantly after mixture starts to boil. Remove from fire. Combine shortening and salt and add sugar gradually, creaming well. Add hot milk, then pour on hot butter scotch mixture gradually and beat until smooth and thick enough to spread. Makes enough icing to cover top and sides of two 8-inch layers.

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON
CHAPTER 604

I WAS given no time to ponder upon how long it would take the pseudo officers questioning me to disclose their real identity.

The leader of the men turned from his companion and barked his question again.

"I'm not going to wait all night for you to find your tongue," he said. "Now you come clean and tell me where that other woman is, or it will be the worse for you."

"I have not said there was another woman with me," I answered, "and you do not know that there is one here."

"If you are a real police officer, you know better than to strike a woman who is not resisting you," I said cooly. "If you wish me to tell you anything, you must be courteous."

"You're a cool one," he said. "All right, pretty, pretty please. Where's the other woman?"

"There's no use trying to deceive you," I said. "There was another woman with me, but I do not know where she went, except that it was through that door."

"Joe!" The gangster leader barked the name, and one of the men guarding Bob and Ronald snapped to attention.

"Right here," he said.

"Get your gat out and be ready to give any one of these three the works if they start any funny business. That goes for you, too." He nodded curtly to the clerk.

"Jack, you come with me," he ordered. "No telling what that other dame may be hatching. But we've got to find her. It's a padlock she's got the—"

There was a sudden crash in the dining room as of a table being overturned. I heard Miller's voice, grim and menacing, "Up with 'em," and then there was the bark of guns, the thud of a falling body, and a groan.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

Start Early to Train Your Muscles

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

TO have a lovely figure when you reach the ripe old age of 30, you 'teen age lassies must stand up for your figures now.

The debutante slump, you know, encourages future figure troubles, with bulges where curves should be. Bring your figure up right and you won't have the worries of your Sister Sue and your Mother.

While your body is young and supple, train your muscles to behave.

Strengthen the muscles in their proper position by standing correctly and you can't take on humpty dumpty lines later. You have everything in your favor—don't waste it!

How should you stand? Tall! Of course, there are certain things to keep in mind, such as head up, shoulders back but relaxed, and abdominal wall held up so as to lift the diaphragm. However, thinking of each segment separately might develop self-consciousness, strained posture. Posture should be easy, not tense, and the best rule is to stand as tall as possible.

Good Posture

Do you realize that good posture is the foundation of your figure? Your favorite screen and stage star (whether you have thought of it or not) has a beautiful carriage. One cannot have a superb figure or belong to a convincing order of beauty without an erect, graceful bearing.

How can you keep your figure and posture perfect? Keep your vitality high and your muscles supple. Outdoor activities, plenty of fresh air and exercise, lots of beauty sleep, and milk and fresh fruits and vegetables in your menu—all these help you to grow up a beauty.

Walking is one of the best things you can do for your figure, if you do it correctly. Swing along, free and easy, but be sure to pull up with the lower abdominal muscles. Now is the time to build a good muscular girdle to maintain a nice, straight front line. To put your best foot forward, point your toes straight ahead. Toeing out weakens your arches—besides, it makes you knock-kneed!

Cut Out Desserts

Some of you are beginning to worry about your weight. If you are actually in the overweight class, then you should subtract calories. Cut down on desserts, candy, in-between-meal sweets and bedtime refreshments. Eat your three good meals a day minus the fattening desserts, and you will gradually reach normal weight. Any marked overweight should be under the care of your family physician.

Whatever you do, don't "diet," for in doing so you take chances with your health and beauty. Ten pounds of roundness at your age is accompanied by higher vitality than is ultra-thinness. Perhaps you think now that your bust is a little large, but don't make the mistake of flattening it with a tight brassiere. This weakens the supporting muscles and leads to a sagging bustline.

Rounded loveliness is a part of youth, and as you grow a bit older your round face and 'teen-age figure will slim down, so don't let worry about it put wrinkles in your forehead.

Keep healthy to be happy and stand up straight and tall to be lovely.

Autograph Party

GUESTS GET ACQUAINTED

AREN'T they the busy autograph-collectors at Nan's party! Nan was having ten guests, and only two had met before. So she thought of a clever way to get them all acquainted.

She gave each guest a pad of paper and a pencil. At the cry of "Go!" they all started dashing around, getting the autograph of every other guest present; and scribbling down their own.

The one who got all nine names of his fellow guests first won the prize, a nifty address book. The booby prize was one of those silly pencils with a rubber point instead of lead!

You could make the game last longer, and also be somewhat dizzier, by making each autograph collector write a rhyming line under every name collected, like this:

"Thomas J. Brown Wrote his name with a frown."
"Alice Jane Hoyt Wears a very full skoit."
"Henry William Lansing
Is good at tap dancing."

But it's great fun just with the names, if your guests are not the rhyme-writing kind.

Nan served the daintiest refreshments—crab meat salad with celery and mayonnaise, narrow finger sandwiches of lemon butter and of cream cheese, and a rose-frosted angel cake, the best-looking thing you ever saw. She had hot coffee and tea, and cold punch, to suit everybody.

Nan is top of the list in her crowd as a clever hostess. You can be, too, with the help of our 40-page illustrated Home Institute booklet, Good Parties. It suggests games and stunts, plans menus for all kinds of parties, showers, teas, garden parties, church parties, children's parties, birthday parties.

Why wrack your brain for new ideas when you will find a wealth of entertainment suggestions in this booklet?

Side-splitting fun, easily arranged, no expensive equipment needed to make your party a success.

Beatrice Fairfax Gives:

ADVICE ON LOVE AND MARRIAGE

Our Hopes, Dreams Vital

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A very vital part of us, indeed, are our hopes and our dreams.

In youth, our imaginations paint the future in rosy colors, urge us on to make the most of our abilities and our opportunities.

In our old age, our memories keep still real and vivid for us the happy scenes of the past.

But in hopes and dreams alone, few of us, in our active years, can find contentment.

To me, today, writes a sorrowful and perplexed young woman who has been trying, for all too long a time, to satisfy her heart with something less than love's true substance.

Her letter, which wins today's $5 award, is as follows:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

What would you do, if you had had a man constantly in your mind for seven years—if you could think of no one but him as a husband who might make you happy?

He is aware of the fact that I exist. That much I know. But he doesn't seek me.

Do you think it might be proper for a girl in my position to make the first advances, even though she is not naturally of a forward type and not even sure that the man himself cares enough?

Or do you think I am deluding myself with a false hope and living on past dreams?

He is ten years older than I—and I am 29. But he appeals to me more than anyone I have ever known.

Please give me your advice!

LOVE-HUNGRY.

MY DEAR FRIEND:

It's high time for you to force yourself to awake to realities.

Seven years is too long to eat your heart out for a man who is merely aware of your existence.

At 29, you are still young enough to find a suitor who won't leave you in doubt as to whether or not he "cares enough," who won't wait for you to "make the first advances."

Your dream-man, well along toward middle age, is hardly apt now to turn belatedly romantic.

Stop kidding yourself, Love-Hungry.

For that all-alone feeling, which gets you down, try a touch of [illegible] powder, a dab of lipstick [illegible] much smiling optimism as you can muster.

There are lonely menfolks, too. The world is full of them.

Start looking, Love-Hungry!

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have read so many letters from unhappy young people in your column that I want you to know how really wonderful my life is. My father and mother are the most understanding people in the world.

There are four of us children and we are all treated swell. My brother is 18. I am 16. My sisters are 11 and eight.

Not one of us is spoiled. We are allowed to bring our friends to the house anytime we want. I am permitted to go out with any boy who is respectable.

No, we are not to well off, but we all share the things we have in our humble home. My parents do not want praise, because they consider it their duty to bring us up to be healthy and happy.

I wish more people were blessed with fathers and mothers like mine.

H. H.

DEAR LITTLE GIRL,

I, too, wish there were more men and women in the world like your father and mother. They are truly wise, and the love you girls and boys are showing them more than pays for any sacrifice they make.

In all life there is nothing better than the possession of parents who understand their children and who have the tolerance to regard things in the manner of youth.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Don't you think a girl of 16 is old enough to use rouge and lipstick? I do, but my mother objects. This morning when I was leaving for school she cornered me, took a towel and wiped all the make-up from my face.

I was so humiliated that I stayed in my room all day. Now I stop every morning at the home of a girl friend and put on my rouge and make-up before I go to school.

My mother reads your column, and I know a tolerant letter from you will alter her views.

JUST SIXTEEN.

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL:

If I were 16, I'd never think of rouge and lipstick. I'd rejoice in my natural youthfulness and avoid everything artificial. Of course, I'd use a delicately tinted powder and I'd take care that my hair was attractively styled. But I'd never, never dream of going into a schoolroom looking like a chorus girl.

Dear child, the real purpose of rouge, lipstick, eyebrow pencils and other cosmetics is to RESTORE the appearance of youth. Faded women of 40 are frequently required to resort to artificiality. But NEVER a girl of 16.

Throw away your make-up kit, little girl. You'll be a lot more popular with your teachers and boy friends, if you do.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

This is a financial problem, not one of love. We happen to be very much in love and intend to be married in June. But this depression is giving us a licking. Our combined salaries are enough to live on, but we haven't the means to get started in the manner we would like.

We would like to furnish a home and give our marriage a solid foundation. What would you advise us to do?

J. D.

MY DEAR J. D.:

I would advise you to buy enough furniture for four or five rooms. You don't have to pay cash. Convenient, weekly payments can be arranged, and they won't prove too difficult if you budget your income and do not buy expensive articles.

You'll find plenty of suggestions by watching the ads in this paper.

Young couples are wise when they furnish homes. They give themselves something to work for. This does more to make marriage happy than anything else I could suggest.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Easter Gifts

CUDDLE TOYS PATTERN 1174

"HAPPY Easter!" echo the two Easter Bunnies and their friend the Chick.

Wouldn't your own tots, or another's, be tickled to find these three cuddle toys when they're hunting for Easter eggs?

You'll have fun making them, too, for they are just two pieces sewn together, not counting ears and wings. The bunnies' clothes are all embroidered on in easy stitches. Then send for the pattern today, for it includes directions for making all three.

Pattern 1174 comes to you with a transfer pattern of two bunnies and one chick; directions for making them; material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

LISTEN, WORLD! -:- Elsie Robinson Discusses Spring Gypsies

When I was a little girl the gypsies camped every year in a lonely lane by Ruane's pasture.

For months the lane would stand empty, save for the rabbits scuttling through the hot, sweet thickets of anise, and the small blue butterfly that spread in a trembling web above the wild mustard. Then, beween a dawn and dusk, the gypsies would swoop down like a great flock of ragged, vivid birds.

Elsie Robinson

Back of their camp the pasture rolled up to the sky peacock green, with heavy winter grass—burnished gold through the long, dry months of summer and fall. And, against the green and gold and blue, the gypsy smoke rose in lavender wands.

I like the gypsies. They are an unclean, lazy bunch of thieves, but handsome and most friendly. I greatly preferred them to virtuous but dreary, respectable folk. Whenever I could I ran away and ate with them.

Sharp, as if it were yesterday, I can remember the smell and taste of gypsy stew . . . the wide, green twilight with the sleeping fields stretching out and out . . . the gypsies lolling around a great sooty pot, babies sprawling, dogs skulking . . . the battered vans looming black and shapeless behind the twinkling fires.

What was there about that stew? It was not like any stew we ever had at home although I had no doubt that it was stolen from the same source. But there was a tang to it—anise, perhaps, or a handful of pungent herbs gathered and dried in their wandering.

Or was it the touch of the gypsy life itself—that life which, even as a child, I could see was not all romance. Fierce, lashing suns and seeping rain, knife cuts and rags . . . hot brawls or broken wails besides some hurried wayside grave . . . a sudden flight before the angry Law . . . did these things help to give a tang to stew?

Certainly there was magic in it somewhere. For, eating with them so, something happened that never happened over other food with other people.

Squatting there in the dusty dusk, digging our fingers into a common pot, something for a little, made us all one . . . drew us together as fine silver and linen and plattered meats would never have done.

All my life I have remembered that gypsy stew. And, with the years, I have slowly come to know its deeper meaning. For the years made a gypsy of me, too, sending me drifting down cruel, hard roads . . . camping in lonely lanes. And many a strange thing went to the flavoring of my scanty stew . . . danger and pain, recklessness, loneliness, anger and fear.

CAN NEVER FORGET

And a grave by the wayside which the heart will never forget, though the feet must go trudging on.

Gypsy stew—how many a pot I've made, how many a pot I've shared. And something came with that sharing which I never found in happy, carefree life.

Squatting there together, lonely and outcast and poor.

Laughing together, for a while, our eyes defying the dark—

Something in me woke . . . something in them answered . . .

Eating from one bitter stew made us all one clan. Those who've eaten gypsy stew never can forget.

New Swim Suits

BATHING suits are going definitely glamorous this season.

If you insist on a suit purely for swimming purposes, you'll simply have to have another for decorative lounging on the beach.

Satin lastex suits in evening gown colors, printed cottons and necktie silks are all over the place. And most of them have matching coats. Suits are as brief as ever, starring the figure in all cases.

Petticoat Fever!

If you haven't it already—you will have! For there's something about a swishy petticoat that's just what we need to temper the mannishness of our suits this spring. Well—certainly nothing could be more "definitely feminine!" I know, for one, I'm delighted that this old love has returned to fashion. There's something so demure about petticoats—and, my dear, something SO subtly alluring, too! I can't explain it—but just try one on! You'll love the flash of whispering taffeta under your tailored suit and your sheer frocks! The petticoat I've sketched is in Rayon Taffeta—and it has a gilet to match! Isn't that a bright idea? I found this in Filene's and fell in love with it instantly—comes in red, blue, chartreuse and Kelley green prints. The Petticoat and Gilet to match are only $3.95. Utterly feminine flowered prints and plaids in unbelievably lovely colors are there in all their glory in Rayon Taffeta Petticoats with ruffles and pleats—only $2.25. See them in Filene's Underwear Shop, Third floor.

NAVAL TREATY FINALLY SET TO SUIT U.S.

London, March 23 (AP) — The drafting committee of the international naval conference, in its final session, today made about 20 more changes in the text of the new naval treaty, most of them at the instigation of the American delegation.

The treaty will be signed Wednesday in St. James' palace, the delegates hoping it will go into effect January 1, 1937, when the Washington naval limitation treaty expires, and remain in force for six years.

WILL BE LEFT OPEN

Although now only a 3-power treaty of the United States, Britain and France, it will be left open for adherence later by Japan and Italy.

The chief difference between the existing treaties and the new treaty is the fact that limitation on the size of fleets is abolished, and there will be only the limitation on sizes of ships and guns.

Any power can build as many ships of any type as it wishes, something now prohibited under the Washington treaty of 1922 and the London treaty of 1930.

RATIO WIPED OUT

The ratio of 5-5-3 is wiped out as far as treaties are concerned. This is the chief thing in the existing treaties to which Japan objected.

But treaty or no treaty, it is expected that the United States and Britain will try unofficially to maintain their fleets at such a size as to prevent alteration of this ratio in actual practice.

It Goes Through There And Comes Out Here

Both driver and passenger miraculously escaped injury in this freak accident. Police say Miss Rose Lewis, 21, of Brighton street, West End, was learning to drive when machine got out of control and smashed through the brick wall of a store on Third street, Cambridge. A desk in the store was pushed clear across the floor by the impact. Wall and car were completely demolished and it took hours to extricate the machine.

Relief Fund Theft Laid to Solicitor

Charged with larceny of money intended for relief of flood victims, Malcolm S. Colgate, 29, of Boston street, Somerville, pleaded not guilty in Somerville court today and was ordered to stand trial Wednesday.

Police alleged he went from door to door, posing as a Red Cross solicitor. He was specifically charged with larceny of $1 from Mrs. Anna Donovan, March 16, and $1 from Mrs. Mabel Brundigee, March 18.

Parran Nominated Surgeon General

Washington, March 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt today nominated Thomas Parran of New York to be Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service.

War Profit Curb In Tax Bill Urged

Washington, March 23 (AP)—A determined effort to add legislation curbing war profits to the administration tax bill when it reaches the Senate was planned today by munitions committee members.

Chairman Nye (R-ND) said the committee's proposal for "taking the profit out of war" by taxing 99 per cent of individual income in excess of $10,000 a year during wartime would be offered as an amendment to the revenue bill now being considered by a House committee.

HITLER DELAYS REPLY ON NEW LOCARNO PLAN

Berlin, March 23 (AP)—Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador, was disclosed today to have made a personal appeal to the German government to accept the Locarno treaty powers' proposals for settlement of the European crisis.

Sir Eric, who is regarded as having more influence with Reichsfuehrer Hitler than any other foreign diplomat, called last night upon Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister.

It was said that as a result Hitler might modify his intended reply to the proposals offered by Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy.

Although it had been originally planned that Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's ambassador-at-large, would go to London today with the German reply, a reliable source said Tuesday and even Wednesday might elapse before he makes the trip.

NEW ETHIOPIAN PEACE BID

Copyright, 1936, the Associated Press

London, March 23 —The "Committee of 13" of the League of Nations' Council ordered a new, direct plea for peace transmitted to Italy and Ethiopia today.

The committee, which comprises every member of the council except Italy, made this effort toward a quick armistice in Africa while it awaited a reply from Germany to proposals for ending the crisis precipitated by remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Informed sources said the League expected Hitler to accept the proposals—but with strong reservations.

Roast Turkey Day In Hingham Court

Abington, March 23 — A nicely browned roasted turkey was brought into Hingham court today along with John Lemoine, of Block street, Abington.

Lemoine, according to the police, called at the Williams Ellms farm on Rockland street, Abington, Saturday. Ellms noticed a turkey gone on Sunday and called State Police. They went to Lemoine's home just in time to see a turkey coming from the oven, nicely roasted. They took the turkey and Lemoine.

aroma...it's as much a part of Chesterfield as the taste

Did you ever notice the difference in the aroma of Chesterfield tobacco?

Every person who knows about tobacco will understand this . . . for to get a pleasing aroma is just like getting a pleasing taste from fruit.

Mild ripe tobaccos, home-grown, and welded with the right kind of tobacco from far-off Greece and Turkey (Samsoun, Smyrna, Xanthi and Cavalla)...

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

The conference called by Governor Curley for one o'clock today in the Gardner Auditorium at the State House should show the rest of the United States how competent Massachusetts is in dealing with a major disaster through the medium of the Red Cross and private benevolence. The official action of the state must be left to the legislature, whether it decide upon a bond issue or a tax program, but there is no fear that the state will not adequately handle the problem. Party politics should and must and probably will be sidetracked in the face of this worst emergency in our history.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The Red Cross has a right to expect generous contributions from Massachusetts, overburdened as the state is with aiding the more backward states in the west and south—a responsibility which the Roosevelt administration seems to think ought to be a permanent one.

Personally, I believe the response will be generous and prompt. Perhaps never before has a population been given such a lavish and detailed information about a disastrous situation.

In spite of the long established jealousy between the newspaper and the radio, here is a case where each means of communication has done its job superbly, each according to its facilities and the public has profited and been impressed by elaborate detail as perhaps never before.

News Pictures Praised For Detailing Events

Personally, so far as I was concerned, the flood pictures were the most illuminating. Those great photographs, particularly those published by this paper, taken by cameramen in airplanes, were tremendously impressive. They gave you a sense of the sweep and scope and continuity of the disaster impossible to realize by any other means. Yet the little pictures taken by men on the ground, on the very edge of the event, were no less informative.

On the other hand the almost hourly radio broadcasts, with interpolated flashes, satisfied that oldest of old needs, to hear a story orally, told by an eyewitness and made impressive by the personality of the speaker. In memory I find most interesting Linus Travers' tale told from immediately under the Holyoke dam, the roar of the waters in one's ears, and the quieter but more pathetic scenes in the Springfield Commerce high school where the refugees were being registered and fed.

In our family we found that the radio created a terrific hunger for the newspapers, evening or morning. The rapid radio flashes, broadcasted by the studio men with such obvious excitement, were arousing and shocking, but they came too fast. There was no time to linger even for a moment.

They came in simultaneously, one might say, from the Merrimack, the Connecticut, the Alleghany and the Potomac, so rapidly that one found it hard, in spite of their vividness and cumulative suspense, to take in the whole picture.

Newspaper Organized Understandable Story

Then the newspaper offered the last synthesis—the pages of organized story, put together to form a continuous account, with copious birdseye or detailed photographic illustrations, so that one could begin at last to understand what the whole terrible story meant.

It is incredible that the population of Massachusetts, the safe and dry and comfortable majority, who for nearly a week have kept their radios going and filled the home with newspapers and pored over this superb camera work, should not respond with unexampled generosity and readiness to the needs that are outlined by Governor Curley at the great meeting today.

On Thursday evening I caught the last train out of Haverhill before the railroads shut down. For nearly an hour we rode cautiously past North Andover and Bradford, past rows of men waist-deep hauling at sandbags. The water was up to the car steps. The houses along the bank were already half under water and the tide was rising. Every crossing was crowded with uncertain and excited people. Today many of them are homeless. It was only a glimpse—but it was enough.

Free From Co-ed Life, Girl Finds Romance Afield

She was tensely aware of his interest

As the dark, good-looking man in the perfectly fitting suit passed and repassed her chair in the train that was carrying Elizabeth Harmon from college to her home, it was as though he had deliberately radioed her a message.

Why hesitate? Why not give him his cue? One was only young once, and he was terribly attractive.

But a certain innate breeding halted Elizabeth. The opportunity would come. She could not force it.

It came—in the burly form of the colored porter musically bawling. "First call for lunch. Dining car rear."

Sits Opposite

She rose, heading for the restaurant. The good-looking man followed. He noted the long, lissom lines of her nineteen years, her exquisitely shaped ankles, and the pale gold coil of her hair on the nape of her white neck. It was a long time since he had touched a woman's hair. While he had been away fashions had changed. Now he was amazed at himself for imagining now that hair would look when loosed about her shoulders . . . the rippling cascade of it

An attendant placed her at a table for two. The man seated himself opposite. So perfectly timed was this that almost it seemed an accident.

Because she was nervous, her voice was curt as she ordered her luncheon

The man opposite her picked up a menu. Elizabeth made a quick survey of him.

He had a small head, with very straight black hair—"as black as a raven's wing," she thought romantically. Little feathery tufts of white above each ear lent him distinction. There were lines about his eyes that made him seem older than when seen from further off. They gave him a faint air of dissipation, or world weariness, which only added to his attraction, Elizabeth thought.

Bag Skids Off

The waiter moved away. Elizabeth stared out of the window. She knew that the man opposite her was awaiting his opening. An embarrassed shyness seized her. Why hadn't she stayed in the pullman?

Suddenly the train swerved violently on a curve, and her handbag skidded off the table into the passage

The man stooped to pick it up. He handed it back with a little bow to her "thank you"

She flushed, and hated herself for flushing. She was a lovely girl, with a small, slender face illumined by eyes as darkly blue as cornflowers. Her skin that had the texture and color of pale almond blossoms had deepened to a bright rose. The man remembered grimly that most of the women he had known were not given to blushing. As he looked at her there was a smouldering gleam in his dark eyes that sent little shivers all along her nerves, and her body tensed with excitement.

"It's really surprising that the trains stay on the tracks at all, with the new increase in speed," was what he remarked banally.

"Isn't it?" she smiled. She had a dimple in her left cheek that at the moment made her look extraordinarily childish. Couldn't be more than seventeen, he thought. Eighteen years' difference in their ages though the past two years, which had been an eternity of hell, should be discounted.

Loves Speed

"But I love speed. I wanted to fly down. But Dad wouldn't let me." she pouted.

"Is that so? I suppose it would be too bold of me—" he smiled at her—"if I said I were glad." Afraid she might take this amiss, he added quickly: "In another year or two we'll all be flying. It will be the principal means of locomotion. The Atlantic crossed in a few hours. Around the world in a few days."

"How perfectly gorgeous!" Her eyes shone. She drew a deep breath.

He thought: "She's longing for excitement, for adventure. Fresh from school, and just rarin' to go." He understood women. From the time he had been her own age, they had a fascination for him. Lovely Woman—and Money-making!

But money-making, of course, came first.

The waiter brought their orders When they were alone again, the man picked up the thread of conversation.

"You like traveling?"

"I'm mad about it. My ideal of life would be to wake up in a different place every morning"

"With the right companion?" he ventured. "I've traveled considerably myself and one can get very lonesome, you know."

She was tensely aware of his interest

"Oh, I shouldn't. I should love the freedom. And of course one could pick and choose from the people one met," she said with youthful arrogance.

"Naturally."

"Everyone should travel. It's so broadening. I hate narrow-minded people. I just can't get on with them," she confessed. She speared a luscious bit of fried chicken, and, as though it were a symbol of fat smugness, bit into it with her strong young teeth

"We think alike," said the man opposite her. As a matter of fact, he was thinking with much greater rapidity than she was. Had she looked into his mind she would have been considerably startled.

This Was Fun

"You know Los Angeles well?" he inquired casually.

She nodded 'My home's a few miles out of Hollywood. I've been away at college. A woman's college near San Francisco. I've just finished with it"

"And sorry? Or glad?"

Her beautiful eyes widened as she stared at him. "Would you be sorry if you'd been shut up behind gloomy walls and then at last you got your freedom?" she demanded.

With a clatter, the fork with which the man had been prodding his salad fell to his plate and bounced to the floor. When he had recovered it and apologized, he said: "Why, no! But perhaps I should feel some difficulty in remembering how to talk to a beautiful girl."

Go After It

She laughed. Her laugh was like a freshet of delight. Like rippling water with Spring sunshine on it.

"Is that so important?"

"Immensely." The flame glinted again in his dark eyes as they met hers meaningly. "Of course I might be boring her," he added, watching his effect. "But such are not my intentions."

A wave of excitement caught Elizabeth. This was fun. She felt daring, and unconscionably thrilled that romance was here before her on her very first day of freedom. She had been restless and unhappy her last year at school. Longing to spread her wings and roam the world. Hating restrictions. Avid for living.

Conventions were stupid. Of a generation that was gone. If you wanted a thing in this gorgeous year of 1934, you went right after it and grabbed it, and more power to you

"Won't you let me introduce myself, please?" He took from his vest pocket a morocco leather wal-

"What exactly does a broker do? I'm terribly ignorant."

"You buy and sell stocks for other people. I'm the trader of the firm.

A trader is only a man who is quicker than the next one, who can outwit the other fellow. That's really all there is to it."

"But fair dealing, of course? I hate trickery."

Wants Career

She sighed "How fascinating! I wish I could be a trader too. I suppose you deal in millions?"

He nodded. "But money doesn't mean much," he deprecated.

"Good heavens! Are you crazy?" Her blue eyes were pools of astonishment.

"Well, most of one's satisfaction lies in succeeding. That's what I meant. You know—to accomplish things—amount to something—squaring oneself with oneself, as it were."

"Naturally, I understand." She added, on a little burst of enthusiasm: 'I do so want a career of my own, and all the trimmings. I want to see everything in the world [illegible] everywhere, do everything [illegible] leaned forward confidentially "D'you know, it seems to me as if half the women in the world were suicides? Dead before they're properly alive. Or like ostriches with their heads in the sand. Blind to everything lovely and exciting"

"That sort is to be pitied," he agreed readily. He was studying her carefully, much intrigued by her beauty and youth. Her enthusiasm too. He thought it very engaging.

He suggested a liqueur. She hesitated. She had never tasted a liqueur before But after all her talk, if she refused, he would probably think she had been posing, or that she was afraid of him.

So she accepted.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

I wish I were a British peeress so I could have some coronation robes. I have been reading about them and wondering how I would look arrayed in such a magnificent affair and just how heavy so much velvet and ermine would feel.

ANN MARSTERS

Even though the coronation of King Edward VIII won't take place for almost a year, the smart dressmakers and tailors of London are already preparing the robes that will be worn. Since 1911, when King George V was crowned, 180 new peers have been created—so there have been a lot of orders for brand new coronation robes.

Did you know that it takes 20 yards of velvet to make a peer's robes? And, of course, several yards more for a peeress, for she must have a tremendously long train

A baron's robe, for instance, is made of red velvet and white ermine and fastened with a big bow of white silk. And two rows of ermine tails are set into the ermine

The difference in rank of the various peers is shown by the number of rows of ermine tails So a duke would be weighted down with scores of ermine tails—while the lowest of Britain's peers would only rate a single row.

As for the peeresses—their rank is shown by the length of the train. Duchesses, naturally, carry the longest trains.

Robes Cost to $1000 From Hand Looms

The robes cost from $300 to $1000. Most of the velvet is woven on hand looms, and only three or four yards a week can be produced.

The final say in the fashion of the robes must come from the Earl Marshall. He makes an official proclamation about every single detail—and woe to anyone who doesn't comply.

New England Police Stories

'THE FATAL BUGGY-RIDE'

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

Roxbury Man Slain In Rochester, N. H. Woods by Brother

This is the 48th in a series of true detective stories from New England police annals being presented daily by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Thomas F. Phelan, one of the ace reporters for the American and Sunday Advertiser, relates this gripping story of "The Buggy-Ride Slaying."

Other stories in the series will be written by reporters whose by-lines are equally familiar throughout New England.

By THOMAS F. PHELAN

In the "good" old horse-and-buggy days of the '80's and '90's, no one had ever heard of the now common gangster fate of being "taken for a ride."

When you wanted to go somewhere, in that gasolineless era, you just slapped the reins on Dobbin's placid flank, feeling moderately certain you'd be home, safe and well, in time for supper.

There wasn't a reason in the world—come right down to it—why Stableman Ezra Smart, of Rochester, N. H., should have thought twice about having rented a rig to a full-bearded, professional-looking gentleman from Boston.

No secret at all was the Boston man's business in Rochester. He had explained that straight off. He was thinking of hanging out a dentist's shingle, so he said, and he was kind of taking a "toothache census."

The "toothache census" phrase had been good for a round of livery stable chuckles.

As things turned out, however, the supposed dentist from Boston didn't open his Rochester office at all.

Just twice did he hire Ezra Smart's sorrel mare and top buggy.

Then Rochester saw no more of him.

At about this time, however, Rochester was very much on the mind of Mrs. Jeannette Sawtell, of Roxbury.

In the New Hampshire city were her thoughts and her daughter!

Little Marion Sawtell, six years old and going on seven, had been taken from her Roxbury home by her uncle Isaac, a ne'er-do-well if Mrs. Sawtell had ever known one.

Now, by telegraph from Rochester, were coming messages saying that Marion was [illegible] [illegible].

The child's parent[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] as soon as they [illegible].

"It all sounds pretty funny," Mrs. Sawtell told her husband, Hiram.

"That no-good brother of yours is up to some monkey business or other. You shouldn't have made me let Marion go with him."

Goodbye Kiss

Hiram Sawtell sighed wearily.

"As I've told you 100 times," he said, "Isaac took the child without my permission. But you needn't fret yourself. I can handle my brother.

"I'll go up to Rochester and bring Marion back."

Hiram picked a bag and kissed his wife goodbye.

It was goodbye forever.

But, of course, they didn't know it.

Back to Roxbury two days later came little Marion, entirely recovered from her sickness. But with [illegible], instead of her father, was her uncle Isaac.

"Where's Hiram?" Mrs. Sawtell demanded.

Isaac stared at her blankly.

"Ain't he home?" he asked.

"No, he isn't home, and mighty well you know it!"

Hiram's wife was angry.

"You telegraphed your brother to come to Rochester," she told Isaac. "And he went—like the fool he's always been where you're concerned."

"Marion and I, we didn't see hair nor hide of him," Isaac Sawtell protested. "It don't seem as though he could have come to Rochester.

"Still, if you say so, Jeannette, I'll go up there again and look for him."

"I guess you know where he is," snapped Mrs. Sawtell, still unplacated. "And let me tell you this, Mr. Isaac Sawtell! You find Hiram pretty quick—or the police are going to hear about it!"

Grumblingly, and with muttered comment about what [illegible] was wor[illegible] the parts in Hiram Sawtell's household, Isaac took his departure ostensibly for Rochester.

More days passed.

Hiram was still missing.

Missing, too, was his brother, Isaac.

"There's something wrong! I know there is!" Mrs. Sawtell sobbed to Police Captain Martin L. White of the old East Dedham street station.

Always Fighting

"Isaac and Hiram were always fighting. You know Isaac's disposition. He'd spent all his share of Father Sawtell's property. And Hiram had told him he'd not get another penny. Now Hiram is gone and so is Isaac. I'm afraid for Hiram."

Captain White, communicating with Rochester police by telegraph, soon learned that Isaac had not returned to that city. Hiram had never been seen there so far as anyone knew.

Descriptions of both the Sawtell brothers were immediately circulated all over New England.

Hiram was simply "missing."

Isaac was "wanted for questioning." And he was the first to be found.

Charles P. Costello, room clerk at the Hotel Falmouth, Portland, Me., had read Isaac's description in the Boston Journal.

Studying incoming guests with his usual professional scrutiny, he was struck by the appearance of a [illegible] gentleman who had [illegible] [illegible] J. Bridge of Le[illegible].

Portland's chief of police Co[illegible] [illegible] his suspicion.

"If I'm not mistaken," he said, "that fellow, Isaac Sawtell, is a roomer now, at our hotel. Calls himself 'J. Bridge.'"

The police chief promised to communicate with Boston.

"Meantime," he said, "we'll keep a careful eye on your guest."

In the Falmouth, it was thereafter always [illegible] [illegible] officer. Sharp eyes kept [illegible] on J. Bridge's movements.

Mr. Bridge, some 48 hours after he had attracted Clerk Costello's attention, left his room one morning and sauntered down to the depot.

He hadn't taken his baggage, but he bought a ticket for the train. A Canada-bound train was standing at the platform. J. Bridge was seated in a day coach when a Portland policeman tapped him on the shoulder.

"You are Isaac Sawtell," said the officer. "And you'd better come up to the station. The chief's been wanting to talk to you."

Isaac went without protest. [illegible] had he protested, [illegible] he would have gone just the same.

True, there was no warrant out against Isaac Sawtell. "J. Bridge," however, was technically a law-breaker. In a complaint signed by Room Clerk Costello he was charged with attempting to evade payment of a bill for hotel lodging.

For reasons of his own, with more than $100 in his pocket, Isaac had neglected to "settle up" at the Falmouth.

The omission trapped him.

He was locked in a cell to await the arrival in Portland of Boston Police Captain White.

Down in Rochester, N. H., while these things were happening in Portland, Boston Police Inspectors Michael C. Shields and John B. Witham were exceedingly busy.

What seemed to interest them particularly were the movements, a week or two previously, of the bearded Boston "dentist" who had hired Ezra Smart's sorrel mare and top-buggy.

Locked in Cell

The livery stable group, of course, had by no means forgotten the "toothache census."

And, since Rochester, in 1890, wasn't a very big community, information poured in on the visiting officers.

A bearded man driving Ezra Smart's buggy had been seen along the East Rochester-Lebanon road on two successive days, February 4 and February 5.

He had been alone the first time. Then he had driven out past the Morrill place, into the Nutter's woods and across the state line bridge to Lebanon, Me.

In the woods he had met an axeman at work on a little chopping job and he had inquired who owned the land thereabouts.

Second trip, the bearded stranger had made with Ezra Smart's sorrel mare and top-buggy had also been along the East Rochester-Lebanon road.

This time, however, he hadn't been alone.

On the return he had taken the buggy he had met the 4.47 train from Boston at the Rochester depot. This was on February 5.

From the train had descended another stranger to Rochester. This newcomer had worn a black hat, a blue coat and—what was especially noticeable in February New Hampshire—a pair of low-cut black shoes.

Bearded stranger and low-shoe stranger had said hello, had shaken hands, and Low-Shoes had gone alone into the depot waiting room.

Up at Ezra Smart's stable, the man with the beard was hiring the buggy rig again.

This was at just about 5 o'clock according to Stable Helper Charles Wiggins. He'd been down to the train to get the papers, so he knew the time.

Although Low-Shoes was still waiting at the depot, the man with the beard had stopped at the general store in the square and had purchased from Clerk Charlie Berry a shovel, a pick—and a broad-bladed hatchet.

He had had these wrapped in paper, then enclosed in a burlap bag, which he had stowed in the rear of the buggy.

After leaving the store, the bearded man in the buggy had apparently returned to the depot and picked up his low-shoed acquaintance.

At least, the buggy had two occupants when, at a narrow spot on the road in East Rochester, it squeezed past a load of cordwood pulled by a pair of horses which were driven by young Arthur Willey.

The buggy was going one way and Willey's wood team the other.

But, when John C. Willey, Arthur's father, came along behind his son with a second load of wood, he didn't meet the buggy.

Hears 3 Shots

From the direction of the Morrill place barn, however, Willey, Sr., heard three shots from a gun or a pistol.

It wasn't weather for hunters, but Willey didn't investigate the shooting. It might well, he thought, be a neighbor after out-of-season venison.

Even though it wasn't seen by Dad Willey, Ezra Smart's top-buggy hadn't dropped off the earth.

It was seen once more, this time by a wood-chopper.

The man with the beard was at the reins. His companion, apparently in a state of collapse, was leaning against his shoulder, face concealed under a hat-brim.

"Leetle drunk, ain't he?" inquired the wood-chopper good-naturedly.

"Very drunk," snapped the bearded man who was driving.

Next seen of the buggy, that same February 5, was when it was returned, at 9 p. m., to the stable.

That the bearded buggy driver had been Isaac Sawtell, Inspectors Shields and Witham were, by this time, positive.

They had interviewed Mrs. Lucilla Smith, who had rented rooms to Isaac for himself and his niece, Marion.

Enlists Aid

She recalled the supposed sickness which little Marion had suffered.

"The child was ill, all right," Mrs. Smith told the officers, "but it was after her uncle gave her medicine, not before."

Mrs. Smith's married daughter, who did the chamber work for paying guests, had noticed, she said, that in Isaac Sawtell's room on the morning of February 6, there had been a pair of Isaac's rubbers, very muddy, and a blue coat and trousers which she hadn't seen before.

These latter garments, she remembered, Isaac Sawtell had bundled up, a little later, and had finally removed.

He and his niece, soon after, had left for Boston.

Complete tie-up of the identities of the bearded stranger and Isaac Sawtell was afforded by Rochester Station Agent Nathaniel P. Kimball.

He had accepted and transmitted Isaac's telegrams to his brother Hiram and Hiram's wife in Roxbury, informing them of Marion's "illness" and urging them to come immediately.

Now, Inspectors Shields and Witham decided to do some buggy riding of their own.

Enlisting the aid of Police Chief Albert F. Williamson of Rochester who recruited for them a general searching party, they went exploring on the East Rochester-Lebanon road.

At the Morrill barn, they found wheel tracks. These led from the main road through a set of bars, then along the barn driveway to a small door and a tie-up at the rear of the disused and unoccupied building.

A horse had stood there.

There was evidence of that.

And the wheel tracks turned and led back to the road.

Next stopping place for the searching party was in Nutter's woods.

Near the wild and deserted tangle of brush and timber where the bearded buggy driver had asked "Who owns this land?" Inspector Shields, the eagle-eyed, saw what looked like a scrap of leather, an easy stone's throw from the road.

It was a man's low shoe, he discovered, when he had picked it up and examined it.

Other searchers, combining the vicinity, brought to light the shoe's mate.

Low shoes, in this section of New Hampshire, were rare in the winter season, as the Boston officers were reminded.

"I've got a feeling," Inspector Shields told his companions, "that we'll find the body of Hiram Sawtell within 100 yards of the spot where we're standing."

Almost while he was voicing his guess, one of the Rochester posse members had detected what he said was a trail through the underbrush.

As he followed it, Shields and Witham were pressing closely at his heels.

Mound of Earth

Less than 100 yards from the road, what they were looking for confronted them.

In a tiny clearing, thinly concealed by a scattering of pine boughs, was a mound of new earth.

Willing hands wielded shovels.

As the loose earth was dug up, it was carefully sifted.

Early finds were a chocolate caramel wrapped in paraffined paper, a gold collar button, a button of white pearl shell and a metal cuff link.

"Easy with those shovels," Inspector Shields ordered suddenly.

With his hands, he brushed away a final layer of wet and reddish clay covering whatever it was which was in the hole.

The find was a gruesome one—a man's dismembered torso, severed arms and legs jammed in beside it in the grave's cramped quarters!

The head was missing!

On the feet were a pair of white woolen socks, neatly darned at toe and heel.

The remains were otherwise unclad.

With the searching party was a Rochester physician, Dr. John S. Daniels. He directed the removal of the body from the ground, pointed out to the assembled witnesses three bullet wounds in chest and shoulder.

Nearest settlement was Lebanon, Me.

There in a bare little schoolhouse Dr. Daniels, with the co-operation of Dr. John Parker of Lebanon, performed an autopsy.

First of the victim's three wounds, they announced, had been one which pierced chest wall, lung and heart. This alone would have been fatal. Bullets No. 2 and No. 3, also directed at close range with murderous accuracy, had been needless.

Weapon in River

All three shots had been fired from a 44 caliber revolver held only inches away from its human target.

Measurements of the body corresponded exactly with those of Hiram Sawtell, so far as it was possible to figure.

The dismemberment, the surgeons said, had been accomplished with some sharp, heavy instrument, very probably a hatchet.

As if to order, for the benefit of the investigators, they were to learn upon their return to Rochester that the hatchet purchased in the general store on the square by Isaac Sawtell had been found by children in the shallows of the Salmon Falls river near the bridge over which had twice passed Ezra Smart's top-buggy with its bearded driver.

That buggy itself, was next object of the Boston officers' intensive scrutiny.

They found stains on its seat, on its mat and on the woodwork of its rear compartment.

On the hatchet, washed clean by its immersion in the river, nothing resembling blood could now be discovered.

In the Portland, Me., city lock-up, however, Captain White of Boston was making progress of his own.

He had ordered Isaac Sawtell's clothing stripped from him, right down to the skin.

Dark Stain

While bearded Isaac sulked in borrowed jail togs, White was examining the prisoner's shoes, socks, underwear, trousers, vest, shirt and coat.

Most of the garments showed signs of the work of an amateur cleanser.

On the shoes, however, there still were traces of a peculiar reddish clay, clay later proved exactly to match the soil below freezing-line in the "grave" near Rochester.

In one pocket of the trousers, there was a dark stain. There was a similar stain on the underwear where the pocket had touched it. There were stains on the vest. There were stains on one coat sleeve.

When Inspectors Shields and Witham had reported to Captain White, he sought and obtained a New Hampshire warrant charging Isaac Sawtell with the murder of his brother Hiram.

The dismembered body had been found on the Maine side of the inter-state boundary line.

But the crime, police charged, had been committed in the rear of Morrill's barn—where the buggy tracks led!

And Morrill's barn was in New Hampshire!

With its Maine-New Hampshire complications and with its headless corpus delicti, the Isaac Sawtell trial as might have been expected made legal history.

It was held in December, 1890 in the tall-windowed, gas-lit, stove-heated little courthouse at Rochester.

Chief Justice Doe of the New Hampshire superior bench presided, with Assistant Justice Bingham sitting also.

Trace Movements

Sawtell was charged with murder committed in New Hampshire with conspiring in New Hampshire to commit murder in Maine, and with having been accessory in New Hampshire after the fact of a murder committed in Maine.

Victim cited in each charge was the same—Isaac's brother, Hiram!

Outstanding witnesses against Isaac were Mrs. Jeannette Sawtell, little Marion Sawtell, blood expert Edward S. Wood of Boston and the array of Rochester and Lebanon witnesses who had traced the movements of the bearded driver of Ezra Smart's sorrel mare and top-buggy.

Mrs. Sawtell, the widow, testified that she had been able to identify the body as her husband's by the socks, which she had darned, by an ankle deformity, which was unmistakable, and by a corn on one foot which she herself had pared and treated.

The collar button and cuff link, found in the grave, had belonged to her husband, Mrs. Sawtell declared.

As for the button of white pearl shell, she had sewed that, she swore, upon the sleeve of Isaac Sawtell's shirt. She remembered the blue thread, as she had happened to have available a wisp of which still clung to the button on exhibit in the courtroom.

Tells Story

And she had brought from Roxbury with her the rest of [illegible] of blue thread, which prosecuting attorneys offered now in evidence.

Little Marion Sawtell told of her stay in Rochester with her [illegible] and testified that her [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] her taking medicine her uncle had [illegible].

He had brought [illegible] caramels wrapped in [illegible] paper.

Expert Wood, highly reputed as a chemist, told on the [illegible] stains on Isaac's clothing and stains in the buggy were of blood which [illegible] certain was human.

"Isn't it true," defence counsel demanded, "that blood of certain animals will appear under your microscope, identical like the blood of a human being?"

"That is true," Prof. Wood admitted, "but there are no animals of the type you mention anywhere in the northern United States—except in circuses."

Three witnesses told of hearing the shots near Morrill's barn.

A dozen told of the goings and comings of a sorrel mare, top buggy and bearded driver.

Defendant Isaac Sawtell, beard now neatly trimmed but face sullen and glowering, did not take the stand to testify in his own behalf.

Found Guilty

On Christmas night, 1890, a jury of farmers and tradesmen deliberated less than two hours—and found the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, committed in New Hampshire!

Chief Justice Doe pronounced sentence.

"Death by hanging during the first week of January, 1892."

No more buggy driving for bearded Isaac Sawtell!

But the phrase "taken for a ride," thanks to luckless Hiram Sawtell's fate, had come, even in that gasolineless era, to have a double meaning—at least in Rochester and Roxbury!

AUSTEN LAKE

The Jinx Goes Soft:

Red Sox Survive

Three-Ply Disaster

AUSTEN LAKE

THE RAPID ROLL OF THE seasons brings twinges of infirmity to all living things, whether creatures of the mind or of the flesh. So shed a tear for the pestilential old Jinx, the evil genius of Bob Quinn's time which, even past the coming of Tom Yawkey, was the most malignant hoodoo ever known in the major leagues.

As an imaginary symbol of mischief, the Red Sox hobgoblin worked every filthy trick in the black lexicon of harm, breaking the players' bones, burning the bleachers, drowning out holiday profits and inciting manslaughter and even suicide. But that was in the full bloom of its youthful malice, when the Jinx was whizzing with ambition.

Now the scaly old imp shows signs of senility. It's hop has gone. The old champion is losing his stuff.

Do you think for a minute, if the Jinx retained its old venom, that Wes Ferrell would have escaped with a simple forearm bruise on the afternoon of March 5 when Mel Almada slammed back a practise pitch that hit two inches below his elbow. No Sir! The Jinx, in his juniorhood, would have struck Wes a mite higher, splintered the bone and hospitalized him for the year, instead of letting him go with a purple swelling, big as an inner tube, that healed in a week

Do you think that any Jinx, on top of his game, would have let Heinie Manush come unkinked in a couple of weeks when he got that crick in his back on March 2. Pshaw! In Quinn's day Heinie's inflammation would have spread right up his spine and his sacroiliac would have come unhooked. At least!

Plainly the timing is gone out of the Jinx's sting. Its control is off. Can you imagine the old Red Sox Jinx, in its heyday when the green beam of spite was in its eye, letting Joe Cronin off with a harmless jolt in the shoulder, as on last Saturday when Roy Parmelee's wild pitch knocked him down. Shux! Bob's old Jinx would have ripped off a few of Joe's throwing ligaments and had him in plaster bandages till July

* * *

Modern Red Sox Wiser

BEING OLDER AND HENCE much wiser in the arts of neutralizing disasters, the present Red Sox understand the value of tieing their shoes just so, putting on the left stocking first and never wearing their gloves in the clubhouse. They hold the water cooler cup in their right hands, never walk on the bat pile or permit stray bits of paper before the dugout.

Nor will Lefty Grove warm his arm between innings with any but his own battery mate So that, when his catcher delays Lefty will shuffle around on the pitching mound and pretend not to notice when a bench substitute comes out to help him limber.

Nothing ages a baseball Jinx like proper reverence for his power So that the more deferential you are, the less potent is the Jinx's spell Which is why the demon of mischief roosted so long on the Fenway pipe rails during Quinn's day when the kids, being innocent in matters of baseball bigotry, did not know such fundamental magic as to tip their uniform caps whenever a teammate got spiked, or any form of misfortune happened on the field

Nothing ever happens to Oscar Melillo, because he tosses his glove, face down, on the sod between innings, careful to place it in the same spot. Or to Johnny Marcum who is careful never to step on the foul lines when marching to and from the box. Or to Manush who sits piously in the extreme corner of the dugout. Being sensitive about these things, as a form of preventive magic the players seldom confess their superstitions, though almost every man has one peculiar to himself

But the kids of Quinn's day, being young and dumb, never paid homage to the Jinx, or Wamie of Goople, as the team's clubhouse imp is variously called. Thus they shivered their ankles took sick and got "elbow lice" in their pitching arms, as the little bone chips in the joint are termed.

* * *

Risky Commodity

HAVING A MORBID INTEREST, I am wondering how Tom Yawkey emoted when he saw his most expensive bit of human jewelry tumbled by Parmelee's fast ball. After spending $250,000, it is reasonable to think that Tom, following a frozen moment, experienced a mental jumble in which pity mingled with visions of a vanished pennant and wasted cash

Twice, during his Red Sox presidency, I sat beside Bob Quinn when promising players snapped their bones. Once in Pelican Park at New Orleans a likely youngster named Walter Shaner slid into third base and cracked his ankle with a noise like a firecracker. Quinn had not stirred in his sideline box or made any sign that he noticed, except for a russet flush that crept slowly from the back of his jaws where, suddenly there were muscular bulges, like twin walnuts

And as Shaner was being trundled off, hammock fashion with his injury pillowed in sweaters, Quinn remarked to the empty air, "There goes $50,000," though when Shaner recovered next year, he was not worth 50 cents.

Then on a Decoration Day game I sat thus again when Jack Rothrock splintered his ankle in an awkward slide, and Quinn had lectured sadly on what a perishable commodity was the human flesh, and how, though you paid large sums for star athletes, you were only buying fragile bubbles which, at any moment, might bust in a splatter of suds

It may be that being blessed with lavish wealth Yawkey does not dwell on the cash risks as did Bob Quinn, who had no more finances than a country church mouse. So, when he paid $125,000 in 1934 for Lefty Grove, who promptly grew an ache in his shoulder, Tom did not cry off his bargain, and he risked a loss which would have broken a poorer man's heart. But he must have done some finger counting on the hazards of his new hobby, just as this spring, he had three occasions to be thankful the Red Sox Jinx had turned soft in its dotage instead of being the rip snorting, malignant hoodoo of Bob Quinn's time.

Red Sox Outwallop Tigers

By Jimmy Foxx

Sarasota, Fla., March 23—Don't expect any story from me when we win our first game. I'll be too amazed to do any writing.

"Why don't you cut loose and tell what you really think of your new club, so far?" asked Manager Joe Cronin joshingly just before I started this yarn.

This gives me an idea

I'm going to answer my boss seriously and truthfully

I think we have a great ball club. I'll continue to think so if we lose every game up to the day the season opens.

But defeats down here don't worry me They ceased to long ago. In 1930 the Athletics won only three exhibition games. The next year we won but two. Both seasons we won the pennant

Against Tommy Bridges and "Schoolboy" Rowe, Detroit's aces we scored five runs yesterday In six starts we've tallied exactly 30 runs.

PITCHING POOR

I still insist that kind of power must prevail in the long run

Our chief weaknesses to date have been lack of steady pitching and lack of co-ordination in the supporting cast due to frequent shifts and the number of new men therein

Neither of these deficiencies (a Moe Berg word) is anything over which to be perturbed (another Berg contribution)

We haven't had good pitching because we've relied mainly on raw recruits.

Grove, Ferrell and Ostermueller have each pitched but three innings all spring

The kids must get their chance down here. They can't be experimented with after the race starts. If any of them makes the grade, it will be great. If they don't, we'll just let our veteran aces do all the winning after the bell rings

But we are working better together in every game With the start of the season still three weeks away I'm sure we'll click like a veteran outfit when the bell rings.

FOXX HITTING

I repeat, everything is progressing most favorably, in my opinion. We have the class. We'll demonstrate it when the games begin to count

And I can't help but pat myself on the back over my hitting in the past. I was just about the worst hitter in the league during training season. I understand my average for the six games the Sox have played is over .300.

I've hit a home run a week, too

My first was against the Reds two weeks ago Sunday The second was off Tommy Bridges at Lakeland yesterday

The second [illegible] travel nearly as far as the first but I believe it was plenty long enough to clear [illegible] at Fenway Park

I must admit though that the champions looked great even with Greenberg and Cochrane not playing

But I still think we'll beat them out

Jim Henry and Manuel Salvo who finished up the game for us each gave his most impressive performance so far

I especially liked the way Salvo employed his slow ball. He used it when behind batters. He had Simmons looking foolish

Edwards Ruled Off Race Track

New Orleans, March 23 (AP)—Jockey Dale Edwards today had been barred from the turf as a result of a ruling by Fair Grounds track stewards that he used a device other than a whip or spur.

Edwards was barred after the second race yesterday in which his mount, Koles Boy, finished third. Trainer R. Benbow and horses owned by Mrs. R. Benbow were also ruled off. The horses of J. A. Davis were ordered suspended pending appointment of another trainer.

Jockeys have been known to use an electric device to spur their horses near the finish but stewards did not pardon [illegible] in their charge against Edwards.

Apply Whitewash To Don Meade Case

Exercising Horses for Colonel Bradley

By Bill Corum

New York, March 23—The silence of the kings of the so-called Sport of Kings on the Don Meade affair in Florida begins to be a little deafening. Also mystifying.

It begins to look as though [illegible] anywhere else, like so many ostriches.

Somebody is apt to yank the tail feathers out of the bird that lays the golden egg, while their backs are [illegible] down.

Confederates

[illegible] because the facts have not been made public. But it must be reasonably obvious that if Donald Meade was fixing, or attempting to fix races, that he had confederates.

It's possible to fix a prize fight with the connivance of one principal. Not a horse race. We saw Meade ride two horses on one occasion in a Kentucky Derby. But he couldn't make a practice of it.

He would [illegible] there wasn't much doubt that Mrs. Silas Mason's Head Play was the best horse [illegible] Meade succeeded in getting the number of the Bradley colt Broker's Tip into the number one slot.

Possibly it is his gratitude over [illegible] sion, as Damon Runyon recently revealed that the colonel is doing.

And it may be all right. Maybe Meade has been more sinned against than sinning. It doesn't look good, however.

If the ace jockey of the [illegible] Idle Hour string is innocent of the charges the Florida Racing Commission brought against him, then it is to him that the turf people owe the publication of the true facts.

Needs Airing

Thoroughbreds are not good for anything except racing, anyhow. So far as war goes, the last one proved that the day of the four legged soldier is gone. The cavalry charge was a thrilling thing.

Why not, a little more attention to the little boys who ride them? [illegible] proctor and father confessor for them? There are so many, many ways in which they could be helped and improved individually to the improvement of the sport as a whole.

[illegible] group? [illegible] sport, supported by the public. To freely air one scandal is the best way to prevent another one. Or so it seems to me.

Queen Helen Ready for '36 Campaign

San Francisco, March 23 (US)—If [illegible] conditioning means anything, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody is coming to a bigger and brighter season than she had last year when her sensational comeback to big time tennis after a two-year layoff was one of the outstanding achievements in sports.

Making her first appearance of the year to team with Don Budge in an exhibition mixed doubles match, Queen Helen appeared to be in better form than she was at this time last year.

She and Budge, who plan to play together at Wimbledon, did not [illegible] and at times Budge, although he was steady and hit hard in his singles match with Shields, failed to support his partner evenly.

Mrs. Moody was, perhaps, because it is so very early in the season, comparatively ineffective in the forecourt.

Shields, never very steady with [illegible] manner of hauling off, cocking his elbow, and taking a [illegible] at the ball, was more unsteady than usual as was to be [illegible] paying a flying visit from Hollywood. Budge showed far more of everything as he took the large and handsome Shields over to the tune of 6-2, 6-4.

B. C. to Open Against Navy

Captain Tim Ready continues to be the only sure member of the Boston College infield as Coach Frank McCrehan keeps sifting his reduced squad of 17 infielders in an effort to arrive at the best combination for the southern trip which opens April 11 against the Navy at Annapolis.

Last Saturday the Eagle mentor slashed 11 men from his infield squad of 28 that had been working out last week at the Commonwealth Armory and a still further reduction will materialize this week according to the coach.

The chief of the Eagle mentor is that the weather will permit him to drill his squad at University Heights before the week is over. The second scheduled cut in the squad will take place the day before the team goes outdoors according to present plans.

Dean Brothers Sign on Line

Bradenton, Fla., March 23 (AP)—Branch Rickey, [illegible] and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, today announced Paul Dean has agreed to join his older brother, Jerome "Dizzy," in returning to the "G[illegible] H[illegible]" fold. [illegible] today from Dallas.

Rickey was all smiles over the end of the winter-long holdout of the Cardinals' two [illegible] Dizzy signed his contract last night and Rickey said Paul would sign as soon as he arrived.

St. Louis has a rule against revealing contract terms and neither "Dizzy's" nor Paul's salary was announced. The elder of the two brothers has been [illegible] for $40,000 and said he received $18,500 last year. Paul was understood to have received about $9500 last year.

SECOND In Last EFFORT

By Dave Wilson

(Selections for fast track)

BEST BET—WISE BUN, FOURTH RACE

Tropical Park, Florida, March 23—Mike McCongil's Wise Bun, on the strength of a corking second to Little Shaver only a few days back, is entitled to a standout rating over maiden juveniles of unknown quality in the four panels of the fourth stanza here this afternoon.

FIRST RACE
Mattapeake, Creole Bird, Lorraine S.

String along with MATTAPEAKE in this wide open affair. Recent form says that the Ager color-bearer holds the speed of the party. CREOLE BIRD, very unreliable sort, figures next best on the strength of a recent third to Balmacan. LORRAINE S., a trifle short last trip, should improve enough to save the minor award.

Dave Wilson

SECOND RACE
Mucho Gusto, Dark War, Canterboy.

The very consistent MUCHO GUSTO was pitted a trifle too ambitiously last trip but turned in a bargain performance in finishing fourth to Lord Tournament. DARK WAR the main danger, a very partial to Gables racing strip. CANTERBOY, a brisk morning worker for the remainder.

THIRD RACE
Miss Subway, Royal Vixen, Jackfull.

MISS SUBWAY, second to Pretty Puss on opening day, needs only to run back to that recent endeavor. ROYAL VIXEN, a slow beginner, figures to be along in time to save the place award from JACKFULL. The latter was a trifle short last trip.

FOURTH RACE
Wise Bun, Say When, Frisco Kid

Barring the remote possibility of a wake-up horse, WISE BUN [illegible] the maiden ranks in [illegible] Competition, if any, will [illegible] furnished by W. H. Gal[illegible]'s SAY WHEN. The work [illegible] with a spar[illegible] panels in :48. FRISCO KID, another fast worker, may [illegible]

FIFTH RACE
Shot Up, Miss Otis, Irish Ted

SHOT UP, racing without blinkers, was favorite over better company last trip but turned in a dismal performance. The Rogue's Badge will be added for tomorrow's fray and the Widenerite should be pounds the better horse. MISS OTIS, a rapidly improving Miss, is strictly the danger. IRISH TED fresh and good for the short end.

SIXTH RACE
John Tio, Min Ormont, Hi-Well

This is the most wide open affair on the card. JOHN TIO which turned in a corking third to Bright Emerald and Sweet Guinea last time, appears to hold a slight edge over MIN ORMONT. The latter is coming off a smashing six furlonge victory. HI-WELL figures close up on recent endeavors.

SEVENTH RACE
Move Faster, White Ginger, Motley

MOVE FASTER, dropping five pounds from a galloping victory in 1:44 3-5, needs only intelligent handling in order to turn back the $1000 top and $1500 platers in this affair. WHITE GINGER holds some class and has been benefitted by a sprint race. MOTLEY, fresh and good, is highly recommended by the clockers.

EIGHTH RACE
Chryseis, Vanda Cerulea, Languorous

CHRYSEIS ducked Friday's card to await this easier spot. The Merion color bearer appears ideally suited by all conditions. VANDA CERULEA, fast and faint hearted, should outlast LANGUOROUS. The latter figures well despite a top-heavy impost.

FRIARS TO FIELD STRONG BALL NINE

By Will Connell

Providence, March 23—Life begins at 40 years in baseball, when an elder of the diamond congregation finds a fighting bunch of Friars on his hands.

Jack Egan is the sage of the game, who retains the spirit of youth to inspire his Providence College corps to smite the opposition silly in the spring scramble.

Egan has a background of 40 years in the National game. Big league player and umpire, successful minor league manager for many seasons, he took over the Providence berth last spring after the death of Coach Jack Flynn.

The Friars were away to a late start but after mid-season when Egan had the team going snatched the title by beating Rhode Island State and Brown. They scored the sole win of the year over Holy Cross 4 to 1. The Purple had a 13 to 7 conquest of Providence to its credit so the rivalry carries over to this year on an even basis.

TEAM OF VETS

Two Friars graduated last June. First Baseman Leo Marion went to the Giants and now is understudying Manager Bill Terry. Third baseman Johnny Madden will play for Dayton in the Middle Atlantic League this year and later on move to the majors.

The remainder of the Providence team is veteran, and there's plenty of strength coming up from Johnny Farrell's frosh nine, which had a perfect record with eleven wins.

John Crowley and Ed Robinski and Southpaw Tom Appleton, who's a slugger, come up from the yearling outfield of last year to strengthen the reserve picture.

"The strong substitutes," says Egan, "help us a lot. Last year we lacked reserve strength, infield and outfield, and catching. We're better set than a year ago. We have no cage, but boys of college age could be conditioned in ten days outdoors. We'll be ready, allright, and we'll beat Holy Cross, too."

CATCHERS—Morris Berg, George Dickey, Richard Ferrell.
INFIELDERS—Joseph E. Cronin, James E. Foxx, John Kroner, Eric McNair, Oscar Melillo, William Werber, Dibrell Williams.
OUTFIELDERS—Mel Almada, Allan Cooke, Roger Cramer, Arthur Graham, Henry E. Manush, Edmund Miller.

Cronin Return Aids Entrants' Chances

A sigh of relief went up today from thousands of participants in the Red Sox opening day line-up contest being conducted by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Without exception, those same thousands were greatly cheered with news that Manager Joe Cronin's injury sustained Saturday when he was hit by Roy Parmelee's pitched ball, was merely a shoulder bruise.

The popular manager will be back on the playing field within a week.

All contestants named Manager Joe for that all-important shortstop position on the teams they have already sent in.

Therefore their chances of winning one of the 500 pairs of tickets for Red Sox games during the coming season are greatly enhanced. Had he been permanently injured, it would have thrown a real monkey wrench into the works.

Keep them coming, fans. The Sox will shortly hit their stride and then Boston will be on its way, pennant-bound.

Mat Fans Rooting for Robert

By Jack Conway

IF YVON ROBERT (pronounced Ro-Bare) had succeeded in pinning Danno O'Mahony's shoulders to the mat for three seconds I do not believe he would be as popular as he is today.

Robert would have then gained the world's championship and the public would not have felt he needed its sympathy.

Mr. Boston

Most of the 20,000 persons who witnessed the O'Mahony-Robert [illegible] believed the youthful French-Canadian received a poor deal from Referee Ted Tonneman. The fans argued Robert pinned O'Mahony half a dozen times but was deprived of victory by [illegible] [illegible]

The American public is always with the under dog. [illegible] [illegible] fore, with Referee [illegible] [illegible] favoring the [illegible] the public [illegible] Robert's [illegible] since the [illegible] I have received hundreds of letters from readers of this [illegible] who [illegible] [illegible] prevented Robert from becoming a world's champion.

When Robert [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] in a [illegible] bout at the Garden [illegible] he will [illegible] a special [illegible] from the crowd. [illegible] has [illegible] always been a popular [illegible] here but he will [illegible] that the 21-year-old French-Canadian [illegible] he won over [illegible] of his followers.

CHAMPIONS

THE PUBLIC as a rule does not like a champion in any sport. It roots for him to be beaten.

Jack Dempsey knows this better than most men. As heavyweight boxing champion, he was unpopular with large groups. He did not become a national hero until he was the victim of the famous "long count" in his tussle with Gene Tunney in Chicago. The old Tiger then became the darling of the crowd. The fans insisted Dempsey had been robbed. He has since been capitalizing on this popularity.

As O'Mahony fought his way to the heavyweight championship he had the public rooting for him. He was [illegible] as a conquering hero [illegible] [illegible] through a [illegible] of challengers and then knocked over [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible]

Once at the head of the heavyweight division, O'Mahony faced hostile crowds. Everywhere the public clamored for his defeat. Various persons high in the ruling bodies of sports and leaders in wrestling did what they could to throw obstacles in the path of the young Irishman.

[illegible]

As an ex-champion, O'Mahony would probably even be more popular than Dempsey. Danno, however has not any intention of permitting the fans to see his shoulders safely pinned to the mat. In a statement issued before he started West, he declared he would meet all-comers before he sails for Ireland in June, and that he is confident he will keep winning.

* * *

ROBERT

I CONSIDER Robert a brilliant wrestling prospect, but I don't think he is good enough to throw O'Mahony. He lacks the power possessed by the young Irishman. Robert has more sparkle and flash than Danno, but he is not as strong and is not more than the Irishman's equal as a wrestler.

I do not believe there is an athlete in the world who possesses as much strength as O'Mahony. He should keep improving as a wrestler for the next three or four years. He should go down in wrestling history as one of the greatest champions of all time.

I make this statement in due credit to Robert who is one of the best of the younger crop of heavyweights. Maybe Yvon will yet make me eat my words, but on the form displayed by both men to date I shall string along with Danno.

Robert would do well if he forgot challenging O'Mahony and gave more attention to studying the [illegible] styles of [illegible] and some of the other heavyweights he will meet in the near future. At 200 pounds [illegible] is able to show to advantage against the best of the big fellows. His showing against O'Mahony was a revelation to even his most ardent admirers. At times he had the Irishman in distress and on the verge of defeat.

ALLEY CLERK TO STAMP DUCAT

By Ed Cogswell

All entrants to the Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Grand Candlepin Bowling Tournament of March 30-April 11, at the 20th Century Club, will be in receipt of a card stating the day, hour and alley in which they will bowl.

This card all bowlers must keep to present to the alley clerk for stamping one half hour before they are due to face the foul line.

The annual banquet of the [illegible] Club [illegible] League was held at the [illegible] rooms with all of the eight clubs in the organization well represented.

The championship of 1936 was awarded to the Boston team. The five are entered in the American-Advertiser tourney.

McCONVILLE IN

George McConville of the Wakefield Lodge had his team on hand. He pointed to the fact that his men cannot be counted out of the contest as in the match against Somerville they rolled 1620, the top score of the season.

A feature of the evening was Harry O'Brien, the 70-year-old veteran bowler from Everett, doing a tap and wing dance. He is one of the Old Timers League at the South Station scheduled to start the ball rolling in the opening of the tournament. The average age of the team is 73 years.

Margaret Carbone, the 14-year-old miss from the Haverhill City alleys, is entered in the ladies' doubles with one of the same age from the Webster alleys. Miss Carbone recently rolled 574 in five strings and won third money in the women's sweepstakes event at Haverhill. The bowling of these two maidens will be one of the features of the tournament.

Dempsey Prize for Bowlers

By Walter Kiley

The Old Manassa Mauler, himself none other than the never to be forgotten Jack Dempsey, is the latest celebrity to give impetus to the grand candlepin bowling tourney being sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Jack, in Boston over the week end with his new middleweight sensation, Ken Overlin, victor over Worcester's Johnny Rossi by a [illegible] decision at Boston Garden, donates a beautiful trophy to the bowlers.

Dempsey, even [illegible] as much beloved among sports followers today as he was in his heavyweight fistic prime some few years ago, requested that he be permitted to donate his trophy. He stated that he had heard about the great rolling event in New York before leaving for Boston and therefore purchased his prize there, bringing it along with him.

So Dempsey's contribution is added to the brilliant array which is now on hand and ready to be presented the winners within the next couple of weeks.

For the sake of those who may have missed our previous announcement, let us repeat that entries for the bowling tourney, originally scheduled to close at midnight last Saturday, have been kept open until midnight tomorrow night.

This change was put into effect in order to aid the countless victims of unfortunate flood conditions throughout the affected areas in New England. Mails have been delayed and hundreds of would-be entrants have perforce had their thoughts diverted so that naturally their entries might be expected late.

More than 2500 entries are now indexed with the probability that the final tally will number close to 3000 competitors.

Most remarkable of all is the fact that a goodly half of this number are women. Of equal significance is that 90 per cent of all the rollers, whether they be men or women, are rated of average ability, bowlers entering this great event in the spirit of competitive fun and [illegible] standing an excellent chance under the three string total conduct of the event to blast many of the experts right out of the picture.

DEMPSEY PRIZE FOR BOWLING TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES

After losing a 3 to 1 verdict to Rangers last night, in the wind up game of the regular N. H. L. season, the Bruins are resting up today, waiting for the invasion of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Bill Grimes

Although he would have appreciated a victory, Manager Frank Patrick did not attempt to force the issue last night. His Bruins were safely installed in second place before they went into action with the Rangers.

The Maple Leafs will arrive in town tomorrow noon. They are favored to win the "home and home total goals to count series" over the Bruins.

With the exception of Tiny Thompson and Peggy O'Neil, the Bruins are in perfect physical condition for the play offs. During the Maple Leaf game last Thursday in Toronto, Tiny suffered a re-occurrence of his old hip injury. He was advised by Trainer Win Green to remain out of last night's tilt at the Garden but insisted upon playing.

Joe Abril of Stoughton Plays the Game—Almost Cashes in His Chips

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Meet JOSEPH F. ABRIL, of 1170 Central street, Stoughton, who has come here today to tell us about his big adventure and take his place in the Adventurers Club as a Distinguished Member.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Joe had the biggest thrill of his life when he was only a kid of nine, living in North Easton, and it sort of cured him of ever trying to win the ten bucks I'm shooting along to him, and maybe if he thought he was going to he wouldn't have sent his yarn in at all

Joe has gotten the idea that it's bad luck to come out ahead of the rest of the world in any sort of competition. Look what happened to him the last time he won a game!

It happened to Joe one February afternoon in 1927. A bunch of the kids from North Easton had gone down to Picker Pond to skate, and Joe was with them. One of the kids started a game, and that was Joe's undoing. He entered into it—and he won it. But victory came so near to costing him his life that he hasn't had any hankering to win anything since.

The game was a pretty dangerous one, right from the start. The pond they were playing on wasn't wholly frozen over. There was a channel of clear water right through the center, and the big idea was to see how close you could skate to the edge of the ice. The first lad tried it and came pretty close to the edge. A second kid followed him, and a third skated even closer than did the other two. Then came Joe's turn.

Joe didn't have his skates on that day. He was down there with his sled. That didn't stop him, though. The sled made the stunt more dangerous, for it wasn't as easily handled as a boy could handle himself on skates. And besides that, the weight of the sled, added to Joe's own weight, presented an extra hazard on the thin, brittle ice. But Joe didn't pay any attention to the dangers. All he wanted to do was show those other kids that he had just as much nerve as they had.

Joe pulled his sled back about a hundred feet and yelled to the other kids to get out of the way. He took a good run, flopped on the sled, and began to coast straight for the edge of the ice.

Nearer and nearer he came to the channel of black water that ran through the middle of the pond His scheme was to turn just before he reached that water and coast along the edge of the ice. He planned on giving the other kids a big scare, and he succeeded far beyond his greatest expectations.

For all too suddenly the hungry water loomed up before him, and when he yanked and twisted at the stearing apparatus he realized, too late, that it wouldn't work—that he couldn't turn the corner sharply enough to save himself from going in.

"I closed my eyes," says Joe, "and tried to fall off the sled. I heard one of the other kids scream, and then I felt the chilling water close over me. The sled rope tangled about my body, and down I went."

The channel through the middle of the pond led to a mill race at the far end. The current was swift, and Joe expected to be dragged along with it. But, strangely, he wasn't. He came up, chilled to the bone, in practically the same spot at which he had fallen in. It took him a couple of seconds to realize that it was the sled, jammed in the ice somewhere below, and the sled rope tightly wound around his body, that were holding him where he was. But he had no sooner discovered that than the suction set up by the current began to drag him down again.

Says Joe: "I was going down slowly—surely. I believed my end had come, and I shudder to this day at the thought that went through my mind then. Was it all up with me? I felt a blinding shock at the top of my head, and then I stopped sinking, but my mouth and nose remained under water. I felt someone grab at my hair, but whoever it was, he lost his grip again.

"The icy cold seemed to be eating right into my bones. I began to struggle, and started to rise—slowly—an inch at a time. It seemed ages that I drifted gently up through the water—centuries before I hit the air again and was able to get another breath into my lungs. Two of my young friends grabbed my arms, but they couldn't pull me up onto the ice. My heavy mackinaw coat was waterlogged and the current pulled me down almost as hard as they were pulling in the other direction."

Then, all of a sudden, Joe felt something brush against his legs. It was the sled. The current had whirled it around, and now it was standing up straight, wedged in the ice at the bottom of the pond. Joe found that by putting his feet on the top he could keep himself from sinking. He couldn't get out of the water, though, and that was his big worry. Nobody can stay in freezing water long without losing consciousness and falling back to drown.

But meanwhile the cries of the other kids had brought help. A man came running out of a house near the pond. He had evidently been shaving, for he was in his shirt sleeves and the lather was still on his face. Joe gets a laugh now out of the way that fellow looked, but then it was a different matter. He pulled Joe out—and the sled along with him, and the other kids rushed him home to get those wet clothes off and put him to bed.

Joe got over that one and lived to tell the tale. But what's worrying him is that next time he might not be so lucky. That's why he doesn't want to win any more games—and I hope he doesn't get mad at me when I tell him he's won ten bucks and a membership in the Adventurers Club.

You can win one of those ten buck bills, too. JUST SEND IN THAT STORY.

Floyd Gibbons has a ten dollar bill for you. Maybe it's a hundred dollar bill—who knows. America's Ace Headline Hunter, author and adventurer believes that no one has a monopoly on Adventure and wants to hear about the one you have had. He is heading the biggest Adventurers' Club in the world, and would like to have you join it because he KNOWS you have had an adventure. LEWIS HANEY ON MARKET

Stocks Show TENDENCY TO AWAIT Developments

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, March 23—The composite averages of stock market prices moved up last week, and despite a sagging tendency Friday afternoon and Saturday, closed the period with a net gain of about one point.

Bonds, though also registering a fractional gain, were relatively weak.

In the first two days, the passing of the "war scare" (and the tax scare, too) brought short covering and a little selective new buying. But as the preceding high levels were approached, the anticipated tendency to lighten commitments appeared.

* * *

The whole week's performance may be described as a rebound, occasioned by the lifting of selling pressure, but restrained by the thought of flood damage and the general uncertainty of the times. There was little new buying, and the volume of trading fell to the lowest level in several months.

The greatest activity, however, continued to appear in the stocks which made progress on the up-side. Of the dozen most active issues, ten made gains during the week ended Saturday, and four rose over two points. These four leaders were General Motors, Yellow Truck, Kelvinator, and American Power and Light, and Standard Oil of New Jersey gained 1⅞.

This tendency to concentrate activity on the bull side may well be considered as a favorable indication under pressure conditions.

More than that, the volume of trading from day to day has tended to run parallel with the movement of prices, falling off on the declines, and gaining on the rallies. This suggests that prevailing sentiment is bullish.

It can be said too, that the market has shown good ability to stand shocks without the development of important general liquidation. Probably the rather heavy selling on Thursday and Friday of week before last strengthened the technical position, and certainly the moderate and rally last week did little to weaken it.

* * *

As to the flood disaster, I am inclined to believe that the early psychological result will tend to help the market as a whole. It will give the country something to do that is definite, tangible, and "constructive."

The expense of merely destroyed capital will be inflationary, but that is what the stock market has been feeding on right along. Above all, the people will feel that the repair of the flood damage is necessary, useful and sensible. They will feel that they are at last doing something that is worthwhile and is not merely a device for distributing doles and buying votes for a political machine.

I think the tendency will soon be to center attention upon the "replacement demand" rather than upon the losses and damages.

On the other hand, we must note that the volume of trading as a whole has declined throughout the rally. This indicates uncertainty, and a tendency to await developments.

It is also to be kept in mind that the underlying upward trend of the past year has clearly been "rounding off," which suggests that some day a severe reaction and shake out is to be expected.

* * *

Mr. Roosevelt's recent budget message shows that he is still bent upon attacking the Supreme Court, and maintaining his wasteful bureaucratic and Fascist system of work relier.

For the near future, therefore, I would expect cautious trading and much selectivity, which would keep the market in a trading range somewhat between the March highs and lows. In fact a sort of "triangle" may be forming here, while we appraise the numerous economic and political uncertainties.

I am inclined to think that the industrial stocks will consolidate their position and get ready for a rise later on. This rise, however, would not be led by the already inflated stocks now selling at 25 to 40 times earnings per share, but by more reasonably priced issues which have something yet to inflate. (Incidentally, the smaller companies are less vulnerable to New Deal attacks or to labor difficulties.)

Possibly a further dip may occur early this week, but I doubt that important general liquidation would develop, and if this proves to be the case, new buying of stocks whose prices are justified by earnings will be warranted.

HEAVY Industries BENEFIT

FLOOD HELPS MANY JOBLESS

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

New York, March 23 (US)—The damage wrought by the bursting of their restraints by flood waters is a warning of the stupidity of adding man-made obstacles to prosperity to the hazards set by nature.

At the outset of spring, current business statistics in the stricken areas will reflect the interruption to normal economic life. But the setback will be temporary in character.

Relief to the needy should be generous, and there should be little delay in making permanent plans not only for future flood control but also for restoration of damaged property.

The net effect will be to stimulate the heavy industries, where the bulk of the unemployment has occurred.

In the dynamics of practical affairs, catastrophe and normal wear and tear operate through the years to require an expenditure of manpower for renewal of plant and equipment. This process, plus the incentive for growth and progress, tend to make prosperity the normal condition for the United States.

The destruction wrought by overflowing waters will be large and farreaching, and the incidence of the cost will fall unjustly on unfortunate individuals. But an offset will be to reduce the waste of keeping in unproductive idleness labor which can be effectively employed in wealth creating activities in the heavy industries.

* * *

Meantime, losses will be exaggerated by the forced closing down of textile mills in New England, and by the stoppage of traffic and normal activity in sections of Pennsylvania, New York state and Maryland, the effects will be translated not only in temporarily reduced revenues of the railroads affected, but also in the kiting of their maintenance expenditures.

* * *

The full cost of the unusually frigid winter is not yet known. Damage to highways and to other property, even before the floods, was unquestionably large. But these setbacks are mere episodes in the progress of the country, and their cost can be readily absorbed if management in the large—private enterprise in co-operation with government—is able to proceed intelligently and constructively.

* * *

Apart from the flood, spring should prove a trade-expanding influence. Seasonally, automobile buying, retail shopping and building activities are destined to proceed at a rising rate of activity.

TAXES Cut Payrolls, PROFITS

COLGATE TELLS STOCKHOLDERS

Business men were studying closely today the statements about the mounting tide of taxation made by S. Bayard Colgate, president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company, in his annual message to stockholders of the company.

Stating that "it becomes increasingly clear that taxes must come out of payrolls or profits or must be passed on to the consumer," Mr. Colgate revealed that the total taxes for his company, which is one of the largest manufacturers of soap and toilet articles in the world, amounted to $6,361,303 in 1935.

This equals 153.6 per cent of the net earnings of the company, 216.1 per cent of the dividends paid to stockholders, 11.1 per cent of the total invested capital of the company, or $3.25 per share of common stock.

* * *

Mr. Colgate pointed out that while all of his company's units, both foreign and domestic, were on a profitable basis in 1935, the net profits of the company in relation to sales are still below normal and do not represent a fair return on invested capital.

He attributed this particularly to the imposition of processing taxes in 1934, "which continue to be the heaviest burden on the company."

"The soap industry feels very strongly that it is being saddled with an uneconomic and unjust burden in the processing tax on Philippine coconut oil," Mr. Colgate said, in referring to the imposition of a tax of three cents a pound on coconut oil as embodied in the 1934 revenue act.

"The processing tax on Philippine coconut oil collected in this country amounts to more than half the annual budget of the Philippine Islands which have recently been given their independence and to which the proceeds of the tax are payable.

"If it is to be the policy of our government to continue to support the Philippine government indefinitely with American taxpayers' money," said Mr. Colgate, "then such support should come out of the general tax fund."

* * *

In the last two years nearly $25,000,000 has been collected from American taxpayers in payment of this processing tax, and is to be turned over to the Philippine treasury.

"Surely, a tax which raises no revenue for our government and affords no protection for our people is a tax wholly without purpose," said Mr. Colgate, "and at the same time this tax continues to raise the price of soap, an essential agent of cleanliness and health."

MOTOR OUTPUT

SLOWS UP

Abnormal Weather Factor

Weekly automobile production during the past few months has made amazing gains in comparison with production during a similar period in the previous year.

The chart shows the course of this production since last October, compared with production in the year previous. The figures are Cram's

November and December in the past were slack periods in the auto industry pending the outcome of the January motor shows. The effect of advancing the date of the motor show last year to November can be clearly seen in the weekly production rate since then.

The abnormal cold weather has had its effect in slowing up production. Another factor in the curtailment of production is the used car situation.

Slowness in moving these has resulted in the major producers putting more pressure temporarily on used car sales and less on new.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, March 23—Interruption of business in the flooded areas has brought downward revision in estimated first quarter earnings of numerous corporations operating in and selling to the affected areas.

Of course, these forecasts take into account the inability at the moment to accurately gauge the extent of the damage but at the same time it is very definitely admitted initial guesses of per share net will prove to have been grossly exaggerated.

Wall Street is not yet figuring on the cost of reconstructing the ravaged areas, holding these appraisals in abeyance until conditions permit a real checkup.

* * *

Libbey-Owens-Ford First Quarter Net

Diminished use of plate glass last month due to curtailed automobile production has cut down Libbey-Owens-Ford first quarter earnings indications. Latest guesses suggest the current three months' profits will be slightly less than the 88 cents a share earned in the initial quarter last year. It is understood, however, the company has recovered a good deal of the business lost during February.

* * *

Fla. East Coast Issues Active

Recent activity and strength in Florida East Coast Railway bonds are said to be based upon possibility that the road's track built over the ocean from the mainland of Florida to Key West might be abandoned. Operation of this track in the past has been costly. Arthur Anderson, of J. P. Morgan & Co., head of a committee representing holders of 65.8 per cent of the $45,000,000 outstanding first and refunding bonds, points out that the hurricane of September of last year either destroyed or made useless some 40 miles of the line extending across the Florida Keys. Receivers for the company estimated that it would cost from $1,800,000 to $2,940,000 to restore the damaged section. Bankers and the RFC are said to have "not looked favorably" upon loaning funds for rebuilding the destroyed mileage.

Railroad Flood Damage Unknown

The extent of damage to railway track and roadbed caused by the current floods in the East will not be known until the flood waters have receded, it was indicated in rail circles. Daniel Willard, president of Baltimore & Ohio, pointed out to the New York American that if the flood waters go down quickly, rails and roadbed stand the chance in flooded districts of being swept from location. If the flood waters recede slowly and gently, the chances are the damage can be much less.

* * *

"One Big United Railroad"

Overnight travelers on Pennsylvania Railroad trains these past couple days have been surprised to find themselves arriving in New York city at the Grand Central Station instead of the Pennsylvania Station. Due to flooded tracks, the Pennsylvania has been routing trains over other railway lines, which accounts for the arrival of some of the Pennsy's crack fliers at 42d street, instead of 33d street. New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Nickel Plate, Baltimore & Ohio and a score of other lesser carriers have been co-operating since the rise of floods in the East in the matter of getting passenger and freight traffic through. The speed and efficiency with which emergency arrangements have been made among the big railroads, with the relatively small slowing up of traffic, seems to refute the arguments of certain "rail experts" that railroad consolidations "are not only impracticable but impossible."

Sheaffer Pen

W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company declared a semi-annual dividend of $1 a share on common, payable April 15 to stock of record March 30. This compares with 50 cents paid six months ago and $1 a year ago.

Dividend

Austin Nichols & Co. declared a dividend of 50 cents on prior "A" stock, payable May 1 to stock of record April 15.

Similar amount was paid in two previous quarters.

Bar Gold

London, March 23 (AP)—Bar gold remained unchanged at 140s 11d. (Sterling price equivalent to $34.95.)

1935 Gain Shown By Boston Mutual

Increases in insurance in force, in income, in resources and in surplus are cited by the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company in its 1935 annual report as signs of better times and efficient management.

The report also calls attention to a decrease in the call by policyholders for cash surrender values, indicating that people are better able to meet their premiums and keep up their insurance.

The company regards this as particularly significant, because a large portion of its business comes from industrial policies.

Though this is the company's 36th annual report, it has the unusual distinction of being under the executive leadership of one of its original officers, Herbert O. Edgerton. The secretary and treasurer, Edward C. Mansfield, also has been an active executive factor for many years. Jay R. Benton, recently elected vice-president, has long been a director.

The total assets of the company on Dec. 31, 1935, were $11,314,399.46 and the total liabilities $10,629,090.16.

Melville Shoe

Melville Shoe Corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 87½ cents on the common and regular quarterly dividend of 7½ cents on the second preferred, both payable May 1 to stock of record April 17.

BILLS In Congress PENDING

AIM TO ADJUST PRICES

By Gene Robb

Washington, March 23—As the date for adjournment of Congress is pushed farther and farther ahead, business men find increased cause for apprehension in a legislative hamper stuffed with proposals to give the government new and greater powers over private enterprise.

More than a score of bills aim to regulate prices. Four are getting serious attention.

The Utterback bill in the House has been completely revised to conform in most respects with the Robinson-Patman anti-chain store bill on the Senate calendar.

Opponents say price-freezing, higher costs of living and a stalemate to improved methods of distribution are masked in these measures behind the worthy purpose of protecting the small business man.

BORAH'S PRICE BILL

Manufacturers and merchants will have one more chance to fight these proposals when they testify Tuesday and Wednesday at hearings on the Borah-Van Nuys measure, which they will favor in principle and recommend in preference to the Robinson and Utterback schemes.

Borah and Van Nuys want to stop price discrimination by preventing retailers from freezing each other out by cut-rate prices and by providing reasonable regulation to solve the knotty quantity discount question.

Hearings are ended on the Tydings bill which lifts anti-trust laws, so states may pass statutes allowing manufacturers to fix and control the prices at which retailers sell trade-marked products. It is expected to be placed on the Senate calendar any time.

Unforeseen opposition has developed against Representative Healey's version of the Walsh bill to revive NRA for all businesses which sell their goods and services directly or indirectly to the government. Its fate rests with the House judiciary committtee, which held hearing all last week.

Secretary Roper denied that business has done much "chiseling" on hours and wages since NRA was declared unconstitutional. Manufacturers complained against the Healey bill's inequalities and said it can't work successfully. One remarked:

"The country's business cannot exist half-NRA and half free."

Meanwhile, Senator Pope (D.) of Idaho introduced a bill to preserve the NRA review sections and more than a thousand jobs that go with it until the end of this election year. Industrial Co-ordinator Berry got his committee to recommend a new NRA—but with less government competition in private industry.

LOBBY REGISTRATION

The House judiciary committee wants all lobbyists to register, but it doesn't agree with the Senate as to the method. Senate passed the Black lobbyist-registration bill last summer. The judiciary committee turned it down last week in favor of another registration plan, proposed by Representative Smith (D.) of Virginia, which has been docketed on the House calendar.

Sudenly pulled off the shelf, Sen. Norris' plan to create a federal power authority to harness the waters of the vast Mississippi valley will be discussed at hearings next Tuesday. It proposes to embrace an area more than twice that served by TVA. No action is contemplated this session but the public airing is suposed to be good politics.

Over unanimous protest by publishers and business leaders, the inter-state commerce committee recommended Senator Wheeler's search-and-seizure bill to the Senate. This is the measure that vests the trade commission with power to investigate anybody's private papers at any time it chooses. Senate chiefs say the bill won't be voted on this session.

THE WEATHER FORECAST

For Boston and Vicinity: Fair, followed by cloudy, not quite so cold tonight, with lowest temperatures in the lower 40's; light showers late tonight and Tuesday, with slowly rising temperature; moderate northwesterly winds, shifting to southerly.

Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut: Cloudy, followed by occasional showers beginning late tonight or Tuesday; slowly rising temperature.

Maine: Fair, slightly colder in east and north portions tonight; Tuesday cloudy, probably occasional light rain.

New Hampshire and Vermont: Cloudy, followed by light rain beginning late tonight or Tuesday; rising temperature Tuesday.

Eastern New York: Occasional showers, mostly light, tonight and Tuesday; rising temperature.

Atlantic Coast, Eastport to Sandy Hook: Diminishing northwest shifting to southeast or south winds, and mostly overcast weather tonight and Tuesday, occasional light showers Tuesday.

For shippers: Temperatures mostly freezing.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

Heavy snow has fallen in the White Mountain region and light rains elsewhere in northern New England. Clear weather prevails in southern and western New England this morning, but unsettled conditions cover all other districts east of the Rocky Mountains. Light to moderate snow has fallen in northern districts and light showers in parts of the Central Valleys, under the influence of an extensive low pressure area central near Dodge City, Kansas. Pressure is above 30.20 inches over western Quebec and on the Middle Atlantic coast. Polar continental air covers New England, and modified polar continental air extends over the middle and southeastern seaboard. The extensive depression over the interior of the country has a mixture of heated modified polar continental air, and tropical marine air from the Gulf of Mexico, as its warm sector.

Comments of Brokers

Continued dullness on the secondary setback is a favorable market development, suggesting the likelihood of an early attempt to rally.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

In view of the uncertain position of the market, a broad market policy at this time appears out of the question, thereby leaving a flexible trading attitude as the only alternative while awaiting further developments.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

Investment sources indicate no change in the previous sentiment, which has been favorable as to both the intermediary and long term outlook.—R. S. Feigus, Prentice, Blauner & Brady.

A jittery feeling still prevails and there is more pronounced bearishness in some trading circles. The latter is based mainly on Europe, politics and theory that most stocks have discounted current year's possibilities.—J. P. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

FLOOD DAMAGE

Enlarges CONSTRUCTION Outlook

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Flood destruction will make building and construction figures doubly important in the New England area during the balance of 1936.

Loss of industrial properties has created a void that must be filled and reconstruction and rebuilding activities alone seem capable of preventing a slump in activity indices.

Acceleration of many industries in 1936 was a foregone conclusion and now the desperate need of restoring plants to their former efficiency promises to take up the slack occasioned by curtailed industrial operations. Unfortunately, any marked construction fillip will not represent a net gain in the recovery column. But for the industries concerned it will be most helpful.

* * *

When it is realized that other valley areas, as badly crippled as those in New England are also sorely in need of rehabilitation work the possibilities facing companies concerned begin to assume large proportions. From plumbing fixtures to paint, and including lumber, brick, wire, steel, cement, lime and many other varied building necessities, an accelerated demand is sure to be felt. At the same time transport agencies must benefit. Thus can the country hope to prevent a weakening of its industrial pulse, even though its losses are permanent.

* * *

Notebook: Stockmarketwise investors should make a definite bid to participate in the results of the flood outlined above . . . Our little construction favorite, Thompson Starrett, already indicates it will be affected favorably . . . Strength of Clark Equipment probably traces to Navy Department approval for use of its cold rivet in shipbuilding . . . We hear that an increase in the International Harvester dividend to $2.50 is scheduled for June.

The stock market presents some interesting possibilities as the week opens. And the rails seemingly hold the key to the whole situation. If they join the industrials in a thrust to new highs traders will look for a new upswing of large proportions. If, on the other hand, industrials and utilities alone negotiate new peaks the whole price structure will look unsteady. Which will lead us to consider seriously enlargement of present 50 per cent cash positions.

* * *

Here and There: If the last named market alternative noted above is taken by the market utilities may set a new top between 36-38 . . . While industrials could climb into the 160-165 zone . . . Probably coming close to the 163 marker we long ago set as an objective . . . However no expansion of present positions would be considered under such conditions . . . Without the rails we would look on new highs in the other two groups simply as an opportunity to sell more stock.

* * *

Occasionally of late we have commented on the improved outlook for baking companies. Continental Baking is a case in point that supports such reasoning. Net profit for the first nine weeks of this year is set at $362,000, against $211,000 in the same 1935 period. This is the best showing made in three years. The company is believed to be earning at the rate of $5 to $6 per preferred share and continuance of the 10 per cent sales gain in the nine-week '36 period will soon enlarge the stock's following.

N. E. PUBLIC Service Mills

The five textile properties, Androscoggin Mills, Bates Manufacturing Co., Edwards Manufacturing Co., Hill Manufacturing Co. and York Manufacturing Co., showed a combined net operating loss, after all charges, of $393,930 for the year ending Dec. 28, 1935.

Included in the charges are interest accruals of $405,905 on loans due New England Public Service Co. and New England Industries, Inc., by which companies the five mills are controlled, and $398,753 of depreciation charges.

STOCKS Price Trend HIGHER

INDUSTRIALS IN DEMAND

New York, March 23 — Industrial specialties led a quiet rally in today's stock market, with shares of J. I. Case getting up 8 points and general gains ranging from fractions to 2 or so.

Selective buying demand made its appearance despite the still serious flood situation and news from abroad that was not entirely optimistic.

Among the principal advances near the start of the fourth hour were those of Deere, International Harvester, Caterpillar Tractor, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Chrysler, Bethlehem, Universal Pipe, International Cement, Penn-Dixie Cement, Western Union, North American, American Water Works, Columbia Gas, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe and N. Y. Central.

Among the few issues that failed to follow the forward move were Standard Oil of New Jersey, Loew's and duPont.

Commodities and bonds were mixed. Wheat yielded about a cent a bushel. The dollar was again higher in terms of leading foreign currencies.

Case ran up on a comparatively small turnover and brokers spoke of shorts being trapped in this issue. But the firmness of other farm implement stocks was not overlooked.

There were expectations of improved agricultural purchasing power over the remainder of the year.

It was generally recognized that heavy flood losses will be reflected in the first quarter reports of a number of large corporations, but the consensus was that the interruption in the recovery trend would be only temporary.

In the meantime, buying continued in stocks of companies that may furnish materials for rebuilding in the devastated areas.

Cheerful Reports

The best net income since 1930 was shown by two of the leading chemical companies, Union Carbide and Allied Chemical. For 1935 the former earned $3.03 a share against $2.25 the year before, and the latter reported $8.71 against $6.83.

It was noted that the magazine Steel predicted quick recovery of the principal steel corporations from high water damages suffered during the past week.

Large steel tonnage, it was said, would be required for repairing bridges and highways in the stricken zones.

At the start of foreign exchange dealings sterling was off ⅛ of a cent at $4.95⅛ and the French franc was .00½ of a cent lower at 6.61¼ cents.

ANACONDA EARNS $1.29 a Share

Report of Anaconda Copper Mining Co. and subsidiaries for year ended Dec. 31, 1935, shows net income of $11,180,087 after interest, federal taxes, depreciation, minority interest and discount on bonds, etc., equivalent to $1.29 a share on 8,647,338 shares of capital stock, excluding 244,748 shares held in treasury or through subsidiaries.

This was the best net since 1930 and compares with $1,926,706, or 22 cents a share on 8,671,342 shares in 1934.

Washington Notebook

Washington, March 23 (AP)—Continuation of the uptrend in domestic production and consumption of whiskey was indicated in the Treasury's February report on distilled spirits.

Output rose to 18,937,000 gallons from 13,954,000 in February, 1935, and tax-paid withdrawals increased to 5,686,000 from 4,591,000. Stocks at the end of February increased to a new peak of 233,797,000 gallons, more than double the total a year ago.

Total output of distilled spirits, including rum, gin and brandy, amounted to 19,803,000 gallons against 14,543,000 in the comparable month last year.

The Bureau of Mines estimates soft coal production in the week ended March 14 at 7,500,000 net tons, compared with 8,702,000 the preceding week and 8,829,000 for the corresponding 1935 week.

Germany, which formerly imported large amounts of animal fats and vegetable oils from the United States, now is supplying about 45 per cent of its domestic requirements, against 35 per cent a few years ago, the Commerce Department reports.

Use of substitutes and domestic output, it was noted, had been stimulated by the necessity for restricting imports.

Cotton cloth imports in January totaled 9,489,000 square yards, valued at $852,000, the highest monthly total in five years, commerce figures showed.

Flood LITTLE AID TO Trade

By B. C. FORBES

The floods over wide Eastern territory, tragically costly in human life and suffering, will have very temporary effect industrially, economically, financially. Rehabilitation will be promptly effected by business and industrial concerns in the afflicted area.

While destruction of property always is deplorable, a fillip will be given certain industries, including cement, lumber, paint, furniture, floor coverings and other furnishings. Considerable reconstruction of bridges and buildings will be necessary.

Apart from the human suffering involved, the disaster is not calculated to make a dent in our national economic position.

* * *

Progress towards better times and greater employment has lately been checkered.

This column revealed that sentiment in the highest business circles was upset by President Roosevelt's message to Congress in January. Not much has since happened at Washington to inspire exuberance in these same responsible quarters.

The President's corporation tax program is interpreted as revealing Washington's unsympathetic attitude towards industry. It is also remarked that the administration, instead of blaming itself for sponsoring unconstitutional laws, is insistently holding the Supreme Court blamable for the recasting of tax levies which has become necessary.

The lamentable lack of cooperation between those high up at Washington and those high up in the world of affairs is retarding recovery. The present prospect is that this unsatisfactory relationship will continue, with regrettable business, employment and breadline consequences.

* * *

Business indices reveal rather serious setbacks—one records that 40 per cent of the 1935 rise has lately been lost. Employment shrank last month; payrolls, however, were somewhat larger, doubtless due to the disposition of employers to give more work to enrolled employes rather than take on additional workers now that the social security act is a factor.

* * *

The picture, however, is not without bright hues. Steel production, though it will be dislocated somewhat by the floods in Pennsylvania, is expanding. So is automobile output. Durable goods industries are being benefitted by the notable improvement in construction, both commercial and residential; this constitutes the most encouraging of all economic developments.

* * *

Retail trade, though knocked on the head in flood sections, is holding up remarkably well nationally. Everything indicates that the rank and file of Americans still enjoying income have developed a more liberal spending mood. They are less troubled over governmental uncertainties than are the employing classes.

* * *

Commodities fluctuated irregularly last week, with the prevailing tendency droopy. Washington is still flopping and floundering over agricultural relief measures. How federal finances can be employed constitutionally for distribution among individual farmers, conducting strictly intra-state operations, is still an unsolved problem.

Curiously, while high-ups at Washington are striving to bring about reduced agricultural production, others equally high up at Washington are berating industry for not adopting exactly the opposite policy.

Surely it is anomalous that manufacturers and others should be officially scolded for striving to obtain a reasonable return on their products, while farmers are being paid hundreds of millions of dollars of public's money in an effort to enable them to accomplish that projective.

* * *

Securities again see-sawed, ending the week almost exactly where they began.

Perhaps most significant was the soaring of government bonds to new heights. The logical deduction is that wealthy investors, owning corporations bonds, are switching to tax-free government obligations because the proposed tax plan would induce corporations to reduce their surpluses, thus lessening the safety of their bonds in bad times.

* * *

What a transformation in America's economic and employment outlook could be wrought were the administration to institute effective measures to inspire business confidence!

As it is, the outlook cannot be regarded as cloudless.

CITY OF BOSTON

IN BOARD OF STREET COMMISSIONERS

March 19, 1936.

ORDERED: That due notice be given, that this Board is of the opinion that, in said City, a public improvement should be made, consisting of the discontinuance of a portion of Mt. Calvary road, West Roxbury district, as a highway, on the southeasterly side, adjoining Calvary Cemetery; substantially as shown on a plan in the office of this Board, that it intends to pass an order for making said improvement, and that it appoints 11 o'clock A. M., of Wednesday, April 1, 1936, and the office of this Board 401 City Hall Annex, as the time and place for a public hearing in the matter.

OWEN A. GALLAGHER,
WALTER A. MURRAY,
THOMAS A. FITZGERALD,
Street Commissioners.

A true copy of an order passed by said Board on said day.
Attest:
CORNELIUS A. REARDON,
Secretary.

IN THE THRALL OF THE PERSECUTORS

Drawn by Robert J. Malone

Copyright, 1936, by American Newspapers, Inc.

WHEN we read of Terror and Terrorism, scenes like the one here depicted rise before us.

The "Terror" was the name given to the bloodiest period in the French Revolution.

The Hitler "Purge," the political murders in Italy which ushered in Fascism, the "Liquidation" of the Bourgeoisie by the Soviet regime in Russia are only varying phases of Terrorism—in other words, PERSECUTION FOR OPINION'S SAKE, the use of BRUTE FORCE to SILENCE ARGUMENT which POWER—resisted or criticized—CANNOT REFUTE.

• • •

THE artist has portrayed but a single type of terrorism—the terror of religious persecution.

We see a mother surrounded by her helpless children, lifting her entreating gaze on high and holding up the emblem of her faith, while her aged parents look on with sympathetic anguish, but helplessly.

The man—husband and father, as well as son—contemplates the armed mob gathering beneath the window, and marking the doors of its victims.

He perceives only too clearly its strength of over-mastering numbers, as he tensely and swiftly calculates the possibility of protecting his defenseless family, the question of flight, the chance of escape.

• • •

FOR centuries, religious persecution has been one of the tragic scourges of the Old World. It was the impelling cause which drove the American colonists to seek new homes in a land where they could worship according to the dictates of their conscience.

The hazardous voyage across the stormy Atlantic in frail ships had less terror for them than the oppression from which they fled. When they finally reached their haven, their little chapels were reared almost as promptly as their rude shelters.

AT LAST THEY WERE FREE FROM THE MENACE OF INTOLERANCE, AND THEY PROCEEDED TO BUILD THE PRINCIPLE OF FREE WORSHIP INTO THEIR LAWS.

It was from these early laws that the provision of the Constitution is derived, which declares:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

And the Supreme Court is appointed as a guardian—to rebuke and nullify ANY ATTEMPT BY LEGISLATION OR OTHERWISE to infringe this precious freedom of religion.

There are, alas, other forms of "terrorism"—subtle, stealthy and in their inception not clearly recognized.

• • •

WE HAVE today the clearly terroristic purposes of sundry little tyrants in executive office and Committees of Congress, like the unsavory Nye and Black Committees of the Senate, pillaging the files and private papers of the citizen and summoning innocent and respectable citizens to inquisitions just as repugnant to the spirit of liberty and as odious and shameful as the persecutions of the past.

We see the outrageous abuse of legislative power by men who attain office through the defects of our election system, and resort to undiluted oppression, to stifle criticism of wrong and illegal conduct on the part of government.

But let us be thankful that there are some courageous and patriotic Americans whom this latter-day and degenerate form of terrorism cannot intimidate.

Brave voices are raised in protest against the tyranny of the vulgar politician who lacks the intelligence to wield power constructively and helpfully, and the sense of principle to restrain its abuse.

• • •

THE motive and impulses of the terrorist are the same, however, in all times, regardless of the form which outrage takes.

HE IS AN ENEMY OF LIBERTY AND OF THE SPIRIT OF AMERICA.

He will run his little course and be cast out. His pestilent endeavors will not prosper.

But it is well to recognize him—whatever guise he wears, whatever form he takes—and stamp him and label him so that he will be known of all men for what he really is—A DISGRACE TO HIS COUNTRY AND AN OBNOXIOUS BLOT UPON DEMOCRACY.

What, No Women?

Miss Charl Ormond Williams, who thinks deeply, proposes that America's ten million working women take drastic measures to stop this talk about their holding jobs while so many men are jobless.

She suggests that every last one of her working sisters stay home from work on one day to prove that the business world can't do without them.

She paints a gruesome picture of Napoleons of finance helpless without their valued secretaries, of phone exchanges with no phone girls, of barber shops without a single manicurist, of other fearsome things.

It's enough to make your flesh creep, because it's SO.

There's no argument about it. And the worst sufferers would be those highly intelligent gentlemen who (a-hem!) hired the gals in the first place and are now completely dependent on them.

Not a Single Black Mark

Charges against the WPA made recently on the floor of the Senate by U. S. Senator Rush D. Holt, of West Virginia, have been investigated.

Senator Holt, who was elected as a SUPPORTER of the Raw Deal, charged that relief jobs could be obtained only if political bosses approved, that the rolls were being padded and that the State administratorship was being used as a step to the governorship.

He showed letters and other documents to prove it.

But the investigation finds that this young senator, who could no longer stand the odor of the "Raw Deal," is all wrong.

Who made the investigation?

Why, Mr. Harry L. Hopkins, national WPA administrator, made it.

He poked around in the charges with what might be described by anybody but a Raw Dealer as a dripping whitewash brush, and then announced:

"I can't see a single black mark."

The Orient

Human Side of the News By Edwin C. Hill

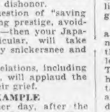
THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

We are told, now and then, that it's all nonsense to ascribe any mysterious or esoteric quality to the Oriental mind; that the mental processes of the yellow man differ in small degree from the thought habits of the white man.



Edwin C. Hill

I don't believe it. Too often have I been lost in a labyrinthian maze of Oriental evasiveness and subtlety to believe for one moment that the Sons of Han and the Sons of Heaven think along the same street with us Western barbarians.

Take, for example, their indifference to death. Not merely indifference, but a passionate yearning for death to cloak disillusionment or dishonor.

If it is a question of "saving face"—preserving prestige, avoiding humiliation—then your Japanese, in particular, will take down the family snickersnee and fall upon it.

And all his relations, including his loving wife, will applaud the act and veil their grief.

A RECENT EXAMPLE

Just the other day, after the revolt in Tokyo, Lieutenant Kenkichi Oshima and his wife decked their home with flowers, wrote polite notes to their families, donned their most attractive kimonos, went together to the parlor of their home and committed hara-kiri.

International difficulties of the Japanese government have often brought on an open season for hara-kiri.

It is the tradition and the custom of the country that the proper and effective way of protesting against a national policy is to perform the rite of hara-kiri, incorrectly called hara-kari, and which means suicide by a knife wound in the abdomen.

On one occasion, a student of politics went to the home of Admiral Kyo Takarabe and read to the household a document protesting against the London Naval Treaty which the admiral had a hand in making.

After reading his protest, the young man gave himself a 15-inch gash with a dirk, but was set upon and overpowered before he could kill himself.

CENTURIES OLD

Hara-kiri goes back through the centuries as the honorable means for a Japanese to end his life in face of failure and disgrace.

Back in the 16th century, it was a privilege of a nobleman to demand this style of death rather than to die as a criminal. This led to an elaborate ceremony. The self-doomed one dressed in his best and entered a white curtained room with his best friend and witness. On a table were a dirk and a sword.

The suicidally-determined gentleman reached for the dirk, whereupon his best friend seized the sword and acted as executioner, thus making death easier.

In Japan today, one may visit the shrine of the god Nogi, who up until 1912 was General Count Nogi, the man who captured Port Arthur. On that night 20 odd years ago, when they buried the Emperor, Count Nogi followed the Mikado to the grave by hara-kiri.

And, as in the Greek tragedies of old, his wife, the Countess, immediately killed herself.

THE NEW METHODS

In more recent years, the youth of Japan have adopted a more modern form of self-destruction. The city of Tokyo, because of earthquake hazards, is a city of low buildings, but on the main street there are several department stores which go up to six or eight stories.

Jumping from the roofs of these structures has been a common practice, especially in the spring, the time of love requited and unrequited. No less than a dozen such suicides happened in the space of several weeks during a recent spring.

But it is the romantic spots—the beautiful waterfalls, the volcanoes and the seashores—which are the favorite places for the rite of Shinju, which in English means "The Inner Heart" and which, in fact, means that the two lovers have decided to be united in death rather than to be parted in life.

No, the Oriental mind is not easy to understand. Here, at least (and that was what he meant) Kipling was right when he wrote "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."

Bible Text: "O give thanks unto the Lord and call upon His name."—Psalms 105:1. Suggested by the Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad, Park Street Church, Boston.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

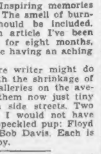
New York, March 23—In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: M. and I were recalling at breakfast a dessert that tickled our palates more than any other. A thin-crusted chocolate pie served with a scoop of creme fraiche cheese out of a brown jar in Provence.



O. O. McIntyre

The waiter said it was a favorite of Abbe Dimnet. Gourmets say all desserts should be held back 20 minutes to be appreciated. Apple pie, Karl Kitchen used to contend, should always be open faced, cinnamon sprinkled and served with a cool glass of milk in a tumbler of deep blue.

I read last night that wood-smoke invariably has olfactory significance for those born in the outland. Inspiring memories of childhood. The smell of burning leaves should be included. I finished an article I've been dingling with for eight months, yesterday. Like having an aching tooth out.

Some feature writer might do something with the shrinkage of the big art galleries on the avenue. Most of them now just tiny salons lost in side streets. Two visitors today I would not have missed for a speckled pup: Floyd Gibbons and Bob Davis. Each is a mine of copy.

Some notations recently about summer: See rural Virginia in April. Nowhere to study crowds like Coney Island on Saturday night. Make an over night river pilgrimage on one of those side-wheelers.

I think it was Zoe Beckley who said she could not resist a book or play with a street address title. Such as: No. 24 Court Street, 2 Hanover Square, etc., etc.

I find I cannot pass up titles with the word Temptation. Best play title: Waterloo Bridge. It suggested every emotion. Another good one for a musical revue: Coward's This Year of Grace.

No performance is so constantly in rehearsal as the magician. Nate Leipsig, for instance. Any time, any place one meets him he is flexing his fingers with a coin. He can make it fairly race around his hand, like something alive.

Ditto Houdini. On sleeper jumps Houdini took along volumes from his vast magic library. The illusionist is interested in nothing save his art. None has a hobby.

The miss who attends my slight secretarial work has a pretty sounding name—Anne Parenteau. Also a mellifluous voice. I've never seen her although she has been at the syndicate several years. So far, too, we have never had a difference.

An American I know in Copenhagen was appointed to an important export job in his adopted city. His employer was a New Yorker he had never seen. For four years they got along swimmingly. Then they met in Sweden for two weeks of fishing. P. S. He lost his job.

---

It is interesting to me that Ray Long, Jr., is showing artistic talents of his father. From his boarding school he sends graphic letters to his mother illustrated with a knack. He has also written several plays that for a 12-year-old show surprising sense of situations and dramatic suspense.

At 12 I wanted to be a ferry-boat pilot, riding back and forth all day. At 14, incidentally, I proposed to M. And got what in those days was called "the mitten." Later it was called "the sack." Today it is "the air."

An interesting correspondent in Scotland is of the McIntyre clan—Geoffrey, a cousin far removed. He had seen a sketch of mine in Nash's in London some years ago. And wrote. Naturally he's a golfer. Pipe smoker and devourer of haggis. His home is a short spin from Glasgow. His great uncle remembers my grandfather. "Tall, thinnish, dour," he described him, "with shaggy eyebrows and intent on going to America to hit it rich."

---

In every de luxe cafe against the wall is always a blue-collared swarthy with hair en brosse—and a chattering lady he ignores. She bubbles. He shoots his cuff. She cooes, he flicks imaginary fluff off his sleeve. Always bored. One of the Broadway take all and give nothing lads playing George Raft.

In the 300's on Park avenue lives a friend in a splendor of modernity. Yet on cold nights he has a hot brick in his bed. Grandma's plan was swell. On freezing days she started us off to school with a hot baked potato in each overcoat pocket.
